In a big boost, govt. cuts corporate tax

Centre issues ordinance to amend the Income Tax Act of 1961 and the Finance Act of 2019

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT PANAJI

In its boldest gambit yet to stir up the economy, the government on Friday issued an ordinance to reduce the corporate tax rate for domestic firms and new manufacturing units by 10 to 12 percentage points, effectively bringing India's tax rates on a par with its competing Asian peers.

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said the effective tax rate for domestic corporates, inclusive of surcharges, would fall from 34.94% to 25.17% if they stopped availing themselves of any other tax sops.

Filip to manufacturing
For new manufacturing firms set up after October 1, 2019, and commencing operations by March 31, 2023, the effective tax rate will fall from 29.1% to 17%. The slew of measures unveiled by Ms. Sitharaman, including the

Spurring the economy

Some of the announcements made by the Finance Minister on Friday:

- Tax rate to be 22% without exemptions
- Corporate tax rate after surcharge to be 25.17%
- Local companies incorporated after October and whose projects are commissioned before March 31, 2023 will pay tax at the rate of 15%
- Tax rate for new companies will effectively be 17.01%, including cess and surcharge
- Companies enjoying tax holidays can avail themselves of concessional rates after the exemption period
- Minimum alternate tax (MAT) now stands lowered to 15% from 18.5% for companies that avail themselves of exemptions and incentives
- No enhanced surcharge on capital gains by foreign portfolio investors
- Buyback tax on listed companies that had announced buybacks before July 5 exempted from taxation
- Revenue foregone for reduction on corporate tax and other measures pegged at ₹1.45 lakh crore per year

rollback of the enhanced surcharge levied on foreign portfolio investors in the Union Budget and a reduction in the Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT) rate from 18.5% to 15% for all businesses, is estimated to cost the exchequer ₹1,45,000 crore a year in foregone revenue.

Ms. Sitharaman said she was conscious of the impact of the package on the government's fiscal arithmetic and the 3.3% fiscal deficit target for the year, but the government was betting on "more investments leading to more jobs and economic activity that would shore up revenues". "We have issued an ordinance to amend the Income Tax Act of 1961 and the Finance Act of 2019," she said.

No GST relief for automobiles

Aadhaar link for registration proposed

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT PANAJI

From October 1, taking the family for a holiday is set to become a more economical affair, but the consumption of energy drinks will become more expensive, following a marathon meeting of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) Council that lasted nearly nine hours on Friday.

While the tax rates were tweaked up or down for several goods and services, the Council left unchanged the rates on products like automobiles and biscuits that had been clamouring for a rate rationalisation in view of falling sales.

Among many procedural changes, the Council arrived at an 'in-principle decision' to link Aadhaar with registration of taxpayers under GST and examine the possibility of making Aad-

Chinmayanand held, case filed against student

Former BJP MP has confessed to 'almost all' the allegations made against him: SIT chief

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT LUCKNOW

The law student from Shahjahanpur, who has accused former Union Minister Swami Chinmayanand of raping and physically exploiting her, was on Friday charged with extortion in a case filed by him, even as the SIT probing the case arrested him.

SIT chief Naveen Arora said the former BJP MP had confessed to "almost all" the allegations made against him, barring rape. Despite the student's complaint, Chinmayanand was not charged with rape but was arrested under Section 376 C of the IPC, which pertains to misusing authority to seduce or induce a woman to have sexual intercourse.

The complainant is a student of a college run by the former BJP MP in Shahjahanpur. Though the police did not explicitly state that her name was included in the extortion case FIR, the student featured as the fourth name among the accused in the case.

Three persons — Sanjay Singh, Sachin Sengar and Vikram alias Durgesh — allegedly directly associated with her, were arrested on charges of sending extortion messages to Mr. Chinmaya-nand demanding ₹5 crore from him. The police said they had confessed to making the extortion calls.

Mr. Arora told journalists in Shahjahanpur that Mr.

Chinmayanand had accepted almost all the allegations against him, including his presence in the controversial videos, receiving body massages by the law student and engaging in vulgar conversation.

'I am ashamed'

Asked if Mr. Chinmayanand had confessed to the rape charges, Mr. Arora said, "Not directly. But there are many facts that lead [to it]. And when he (Mr. Chinmayanand) said, 'I don't have anything more to say, I am ashamed of my deeds,' then that is more than enough," said Mr. Arora.

Mr. Chinmayanand was also booked for stalking the law student, criminal intimidation and wrongful confinement.

On the other hand, Mr. Arora said, the SIT had "prima facie" found the "involvement" of the law student in the extortion case. The law student expressed disappointment with the SIT for not booking Mr. Chinmayanand under rape charges.

Refuting the charges of extortion against her, the complainant said, "this new angle was brought up to weaken my case against Chinmayanand."

Draft rules to regulate social media ready: govt.

May be notified soon, Madras HC told

MOHAMED IMRANULLAH S. CHENNAI

The Centre on Friday informed the Madras High Court that deliberations on the Draft Information Technology [Intermediaries Guidelines] (Amendment) Rules, 2018, which mandate social media companies to cooperate with the police in cracking cybercrimes, had been completed.

A Division Bench of Justices M. Sathyanarayanan and N. Seshasayee was told by the Central government's senior counsel Venkataswamy Babu that the process of notifying the rules was in an advanced stage. The rules were expected to solve problems faced by the police in obtaining information from social media firms.

Counsel supported the State's stand that the High Court could continue to hear the present case, without transferring it to the Supreme Court. He also made it clear that the Centre was only concerned with cooperation between social media companies and the police and not with the linking of Aadhaar to users' social media accounts.

J&K court panel to probe charges of illegal detention of children

Supreme Court says petition raises 'substantial issues'

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Friday assigned the Jammu and Kashmir High Court's Juvenile Justice Committee the task of inquiring into the allegations of illegal detention of children — some as young as 10 — by security forces.

The State is undergoing a period of lockdown following the reading down of Article 370.

A three-judge Bench, led by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi, said it would not make any comment on the allegations for now. However, it said the petition filed by child rights activists Enakshi Ganguly and Shanta Sinha raised "substantial issues and alleged detention of children".

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta objected to the issuance of notice or mention in the order of "detention of children", saying this would have huge and wide repercussions. However, the court did not concede the request and maintained that the panel initiate an inquiry.

At the previous hearing, the court asked the Chief Justice of the Jammu & Kashmir

High Court to file a report on a statement by the petitioners' lawyer and senior advocate Huzefa Ahmadi that it was next to impossible to access the High Court because of the lockdown.

The CJI said the report filed by the Chief Justice did not support his statement. "But we have conflicting reports too. However, since the issue is about the alleged detention of children, we will ask the High Court's Juvenile Justice Committee to inquire," he said.

Two-year-old killed as ambulance rams truck

Attendant also succumbs to injuries

HEMANI BHANDARI NEW DELHI

A two-year-old boy on ventilator support and a nursing attendant were killed when the ambulance taking them to Safdarjung Hospital rammed a truck from behind on the DND flyway in the early hours of Friday. Family members of the deceased child, Subhash — father Suresh Pal, mother Manno Devi and four-year-old brother Shubham — were grievously injured in the accident and are undergoing treatment at the AIIMS Trauma Centre. The ambulance driver, Vipin, is also admitted there, the police said.

Attendant identified

Deputy Commissioner of Police (East) Jasmeet Singh said the nursing attendant has been identified as Sunil Kumar, who worked for a private ambulance service. Sunil succumbed to his injuries at Lal Bahadur Shastri Hospital.

The accident happened around 3.15 a.m. after which a PCR call was made. When the police reached the spot, they found the ambulance completely damaged from the front. The truck and its driver were missing. "The two-year-old boy, his elder brother, mother and the nursing attendant were at the back, while the father was sitting next to the driver. The boy was already on ventilator support, it appeared," said a police officer who inspected the accident spot.

An officer who spoke to Subhash's parents at AIIMS said they had initially rushed the child to a hospital in Greater Noida after he complained of breathlessness. The doctors there detected water in the two-year-old's windpipe and asked the family to take him to Safdarjung Hospital.

Not all is music to our ears, say researchers

Team in IIT, Hyderabad, tracks listening patterns as an indicator of mental health

SYED MOHAMMED HYDERABAD

What does it mean to 'hide' behind music? What could listening to music on loop indicate if it makes the listener feel worse? And could the answers to these questions be connected to mental health?

A team of music psychology researchers from the International Institute of Information Technology (IIIT), Hyderabad, has been working on music listening patterns as indicators of mental health.

Prof. Vinoo Alluri from the IIIT's Cognitive Science Lab explains that her team, comprising students Rajat Agarwal and Ravinder Singh, interacted with 300 respondents, including young adults and workers in the IT sector, as a part of the project.

The team used the 'Healthy and Unhealthy Music Scale' (HUMS), which asks respondents 13 questions on their engagement with music.

"Music helps me to relax" is a 'healthy association'. There are five such 'healthy associations' and eight are 'unhealthy associations'. It was found that the higher the respondents score on the 'unhealthy' items, the higher they score on the Kessler Psychological Distress Scale (if one's score is above a threshold, the higher the risk of developing mental health issues)," Prof. Alluri said.

However, she was quick to clarify that this does not mean that music is bad for the listener. On the contrary, how one uses music indicates one's current mental state.

The researchers also used machine learning to predict where respondents stand on the Kessler scale. Data was collected from a music streaming service which allows mining of information on what artists or artists the user listens to and when, over a period of time.

"After taking consent, we have users' HUMS, Kessler measures to identify who is at high risk. We are now analysing data. Also, we know that music is beneficial in many ways. But you have to know how to regulate it if you are high risk. This is an ongoing work," Prof. Alluri says.

SOL to hold classes in double shifts

Students have been protesting against ‘mismanagement’ since three weeks

SIDHARTH RAVI
NEW DELHI

Delhi University’s School of Open Learning (SOL), which has been facing shortage of classrooms and other issues after switching to semester mode of education, hopes to carry out all classes on Saturday, three weeks after the academic session started, a senior official told The Hindu.

“We have only been able to carry out 60% of classes so far,” said Professor Ramesh Bhardwaj, Officer on Special Duty at SOL. As opposed to previous years, when only 10-20% of students attended classes, about 30-40% stu-

AARTI KUSHWASA

Students were attending in 2019, making the situation difficult for the administration, he claimed.

SOL offers correspondence courses and attendance in classes is not compulsory. While regular courses in DU have about 1.5 lakh students, SOL has many more, Prof. Bhardwaj said. He also said that a change in the system from an annual mode to a semester mode had caused difficulties. While under the annual mode, classes would have begun in October or November, the semester mode, adopted by the SOL this year, has pushed the timeline forward, he said. For the first time, the students of SOL will be studying under the Choice-Based Credit System (CBCS), meant to bring their courses on par with regular curriculum.

The students, however, are unhappy. For the last three weeks, spontaneous protests are being staged by students with classes being cancelled in the last minute, forcing thousands of them to return home.

Aarti Kushwasa, a first-year B.A. student at SOL, said: “We don’t mind the CBCS system being implemented, but they [administration] are clearly not prepared for it,” she said. Exam dates have also been announced for the first week of November, she said, adding that without classes and adequate study material, students were bound to fail.

To tackle such issues, the administration will be holding classes in double shifts, Prof. Bhardwaj said.

Firm discharging untreated sewage: plea

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

Following a plea alleging illegal extraction of groundwater and discharge of untreated sewage by a builder in Noida, the National Green Tribunal on Friday constituted a committee to look into the plea and furnish a report on the same.

A Bench headed by NGT chairperson Justice Adarsh Kumar Goel constituted the committee comprising representatives from Uttar Pradesh Pollution Control Board and Gautam Buddha Nagar District Magistrate.

The directions came when the green panel was hearing a plea, moved by the residents of Antrikish Kanball in Noida Sector 77, alleging illegal extraction of groundwater, discharge of sewage water in the green belt and non-operation of rainwater harvesting systems by Perfect Probuild Private Ltd., the builder.

The petition also alleged that the builder had failed to secure water connection from the Noida authority and supplied water in the apartments from two illegal borewells located in the partially constructed basement of the residential society.

Smoke from generators

“The smoke generated from the diesel generator sets, in the absence of chimneys, directly enter the houses and they [residents] are exposed to the obnoxious air almost on a daily basis,” the plea also said.

Youths demand action on climate change

Delhi edition of Fridays for Future sees protesters raise slogans outside Environment Ministry office

VANGMAYI PARAKALA
NEW DELHI

At the Delhi edition of Fridays for Future, it wasn't uncommon to see youngsters with protest placards in one hand and carrying single-use plastic bottles with chilled water in the other.

This stood in stark irony not only to their cause, but also because of the Prime Minister's exhortation to Indians to eschew the use of single-use plastic by October 2, the 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi.

Between Friday and September 27, FFF, a worldwide youth-led movement against climate change spurred on by 16-year-old activist Greta Thunberg from Sweden, is marking Global Climate Strike, timed to be in sync with the Climate Action Summit that UN Secretary-General António Guterres will hold on September 23 to address the “global climate emergency”.

The Global Climate Strike, which kicked off in Australia, will see an estimated 5,000 protests spread over 150 countries, across one week. This will culminate in New York, where Ms. Thunberg is to lead a march to the UN headquarters.

Friday's protest in Delhi saw about 2,000 people marching from Lodi Garden, claimed one of the protesters, although there were about 300 people who sat through the protest outside the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change office in Jor Bagh. Many students, whose participation was independent and not as part of any organisation or school, said they found out about the protests through social media.

Protesters raising slogans in front of Indira Pariyavaran Bhavan in New Delhi on Friday in response to the call for a worldwide strike to demand measures to reverse climate change. *PRASHANT SONI, VANGMAYI PARAKALA

“Cool kids for a hot planet”, “Hot but not sexy”, “ACT NOW”, “Earth will survive climate change, we won't” read some of the placards held by the protesters.

Even till hours before the protest, the organisers had not received permission from the authorities. There were barricades around the gathering, with police personnel having cordoned off a lane outside the Ministry's gate number 1.

Sloganeering and cheers got louder when a participant announced on loudspeaker that a delegation of five persons will be taken inside the Ministry to meet the representatives.

“While going in, they told us the Ministers aren't in town today. I believe there are two – one main Minister and one who looks after Delhi I think,” said Akshay Kapoor, 24, a member of the FFF in Delhi, alluding possibly to Union Minister Prakash Javadekar and Minister of State, Babul Supriyo.

Meeting with official

According to Mr. Kapoor, Geeta Menon, Joint Secretary, Environment Ministry, met them, acknowledged their protest, but “didn't give us a strong word that anything will happen”.

Among the other members of the Delhi chapter of FFF are Banashree, a student pursuing her masters from Delhi University; Aashiq Rahman, a 20-year-old third-year student from Zakir Husain College, Ayushi Bose, a 17-year-old high school student, and Harsh Gupta, a 27-year-old filmmaker.

The gathering was a mix of high school students in their uniforms, fresh from a session of their ongoing term exams, university goers, climate change enthusiasts and activists, including expats, advocates for veganism, and a smattering of parents waiting for their children. Environmental collectives and FFF “allies” like ‘There's No Earth B’, ‘Extinction Rebellion’, ‘Nine is Mine’, ‘Tears of Earth’, as well as representatives from Amnesty International and volunteers from Green Peace were also present at the protests.

“We have three demands, basically,” said Mr. Gupta. “One is to declare a climate emergency. This is not only symbolic, with other countries doing this too, but it will also be a road map that will put pressure on the government to act; the second is that the government tells us the truth about how we are upholding the promises under the Paris Agreement [of the United Nations Framework on Climate Change], and the third is for them to put in place a legislation to do with the first two, which will also necessitate youth participation.”

On September 27, FFF will stage another protest, this time at Jantar Mantar. “Originally, the FFF is a school student-led strike. But from what I've seen today, this is a little different in India,” Mr. Gupta said. “The protest at Jantar Mantar will be led by students from schools like Delhi Public School and Amity International.”

7 animal bite deaths in north Delhi so far: report

Around 18,000 people have been bitten by dogs and monkey this year

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

Out of about 18,000 people bitten by either dogs or monkeys this year, seven people died in North Delhi Municipal Corporation area, a report placed in the Standing Committee on Thursday stated.

Last year, 16,783 people were bitten and 15 of them had died.

Vaccine shortage

The civic body declared that there is a severe shortage of anti-rabies vials at its hospitals and health centres. While such centres have a requirement of up to 21,000 vials of vaccine, currently there are only 2,855 available.

The civic body, in its report, said that tenders for the same had been floated at least twice but no company came forward as of yet. It added that the health centres have received nearly 100 cases of dog bites.

The civic body has the responsibility of catching and neutering stray animals that it does through various NGOs. The report said that up to ₹3 crore were spent on these groups.

Four held guilty of obstructing hospital staff from performing duty

They also damaged machine after a relative was declared dead

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Four relatives of a fatal accident victim have been held guilty by a court here of obstructing three staff members of LNJP Hospital from performing their duties and damaging a medical equipment in 2007.

However, the court acquitted them of the charge of assaulting the hospital employees as they were not examined medically for the alleged injuries they had allegedly suffered at the hands of the accused.

“In the absence of any proof of bodily injury upon any of the doctors/staff present in the casualty, the prosecution has failed to prove the allegations under Section 353/34 of IPC. However, it has come on record that the accused persons with common intention had voluntarily obstructed the public servants,” ruled Additional Sessions Judge Pawan Singh Rajawat.

The patient, Zahir, had been brought to the Delhi government hospital on a reference from another hospital. On examination, the doctors declared him brought dead. The prosecution had alleged that the accused persons started arguing with a resident doctor, a nurse and a nursing orderly and damaged the defibrillator machine. The court held them guilty on the grounds of their identification by the nursing orderly.

Student found dead, kin allege blackmail, abuse

Case registered against boyfriend

HEMANI BHANDARI
NEW DELHI

A 20-year-old language course student at YMCA, who was also pursuing graduation from Amity University, was found dead at her residence in west Delhi's Tilak Nagar on Thursday evening. No note has been recovered, the police said.

The woman's mother has lodged a complaint alleging that her daughter was harassed and blackmailed by her boyfriend. The police have registered a case under Section 306 (abetment to suicide) of the Indian Penal Code against the man.

A friend of the student, who lives close to her house in Mahavir Enclave, said that the woman had called her around 5:30 p.m. “She told me that she had gone to see her boyfriend and asked me to come over. She asked me to get a packet of chips. I told her I'll come in an hour,” she said.

When the friend reached her house no one answered the door after which she returned and subsequently called the woman's mother.

The mother had purportedly gone to Greater Kailash for a health check-up and returned around 7 p.m. When the daughter didn't open the door, she took neighbours' help to break it open. The student was rushed to a private hospital where the doctors declared her brought dead. The police were then informed.

The friend, standing at the cremation ground in Hari Nagar, said the woman had told her “that the boyfriend was threatening her to stay with him”. He allegedly had some objectionable audio and video clips of her which he threatened to share online if she didn't agree to be with him.

'Abusive relationship'

The friend also said that the woman and her boyfriend used to fight regularly and “she was in an emotionally and physically abusive relationship”. The woman's maternal uncle said that last year, her mother got her to break up with the man, but later he came to her gym and slapped her.

A relative said the woman shared a troubled relationship with her mother. “Her mother and father are divorced for the last 10 years. The two often quarrelled over personal matter and she had even left the house last year for about 10 days and stayed in a hostel in east Delhi,” the relative said.

Another relative said she had accused her uncle of molestation last year. A case under Section 354 of IPC had been registered, confirmed a police officer.

Legal opinion sought on govt.'s nominations to DMRC Board

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

The Housing and Urban Affairs Ministry has sought legal opinion on Delhi government's four "political" nominations to the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) Board, sources said. "It is unlikely to accept the nominations since no political person has ever been appointed in any metro board," they said. The issue is hanging fire since July this year when four names – AAP leaders Atishi Marlena and Raghav Chadha, party's Rajya Sabha MP N.D. Gupta's son Naveen Gupta, and vice-chairperson of the Delhi Dialogue and Development Commission Jasmine Shah - were nominated to the DMRC Board by Minister Kaillash Gahlot.

Day after BJP leader assaults wife, party orders probe

Sacked BJP Mehrauli district president may lose primary membership; he was replaced by Vikas Tanwar

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

A day after he was caught assaulting his wife on camera at the BJP State headquarters here, the party has launched a time-bound probe into the incident with sources claiming that Azad Singh, who has since been sacked from his post of Mehrauli district president, could lose his primary party membership. Mr. Singh, as per orders from Delhi BJP chief Manoj Tiwari, was immediately removed from his role as district president after a video of him slapping his now estranged wife, former south Delhi Mayor Sarita Chaudhary, surfaced on Thursday evening. "The party is now conducting an internal probe into the matter and will take a decision on allowing Mr. Singh to continue as a party member after the findings of the probe are in after ten days," said a party leader. "It is a fact that bitter divorce proceedings between the couple are currently under way; but the fact that he assaulted a woman is inexcusable and it is likely that Mr. Singh will no longer be allowed to even continue as a party member," the leader said further. Ms. Chaudhary was reportedly assaulted on Thursday outside the Delhi BJP headquarters after a poll-preparedness meeting, presided over by Union Minister and Delhi election in-charge Prakash Javdekar.

Mr. Singh was sacked and replaced by Vikas Tanwar as the working president of the BJP Mehrauli district unit within minutes of the incident. Meanwhile, the AAP on Friday took the opportunity to attack the BJP terming it an "anti-women" organisation. Speaking to reporters at a press conference, AAP spokesperson Atishi demanded a police probe. "In Delhi, the responsibility to ensure women's safety is with the Delhi Police which is under the Home Ministry of BJP-led Centre. Now if BJP cannot ensure the safety of a woman inside the party office how can they ensure the safety of women in Delhi?" she asked.

AAP govt. plans to expand its bike ambulance fleet

Move comes after pilot project gets positive response

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said on Friday that the Delhi government has plans to expand its bike ambulance project across the Capital given the "overwhelming positive response" to its relatively smaller pilot project in east Delhi, which began earlier this year.

Sixteen bike ambulances were flagged off in February on a pilot basis. FILE PHOTO: R.V. MOORTHY on Friday said that there were plans to expand the service across the city. "I am happy that patients living in narrow bylanes of Delhi are also getting health facilities through bike ambulances. A plan is underway to expand this service to entire Delhi," he said in a tweet in Hindi.

To extend service
The pilot project has shown "excellent results," Mr. Kejriwal was quoted as saying in the statement. "A large number of people in Delhi live in unauthorised colonies or other such areas where streets are very narrow. I was very concerned about how to provide better emergency healthcare to the people living in these colonies. With this in mind, the bike ambulance service was launched... Delhi government is planning to extend the service to the entire city," he said.

The facilities available in such vehicles include a portable oxygen cylinder, a first aid kit and dressing materials, air-splints, foldable transfer sheets, ambu bags, glucometer, pulse oxymeter, a portable manual suction machine, a GPS device and a communication device. According to the statement, these FRVs are manned by trained ambulance manpower.

Specialists can work for govt. post-retirement

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA CHANDIGARH
Specialist doctors in Punjab could now offer their services for five more years after their retirement at the age of 60.

Punjab Health Minister Balbir Singh Sidhu, in an official statement, said the specialist doctors could serve in the Health and Family Welfare Department after their retirement.

Specialist doctors such as gynaecologists, surgeons, orthopaedics, radiologists, anaesthetists etc. will work as consultants against the vacant 384 posts till the time regular appointments are made, he said.

Initially, each consultant may be appointed for a period of one year on contract basis. It may be extended on the basis of their performance, he said.

The remuneration allowed to these consultants should not be more than the last pay drawn minus pension, the Minister said.

He said specialist doctors shall only be appointed for performing clinical duties.

‘The Chief Minister is a resident of Uttarakhand’

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA LUCKNOW

Terming the National Register of Citizens a medium to instil fear, Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav on Friday said if it is implemented in Uttar Pradesh, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath would have to leave the State.

Mr. Yadav was addressing a press conference at the party office here as he welcomed former BSP leaders Dayaram Pal and Mithai Lal Bharati into the Samajwadi Party fold. Mr. Pal has been a president of the Mayawati-led Bahujan Samaj Party's U.P. unit.

U.P. farmers to march to Delhi

‘You can't get our vote only in the name of Ram temple and nationalism’

ANUJ KUMAR NOIDA

Hundreds of farmers will march to Kisan Ghat in Delhi on Saturday after talks between members of the Bhartiya Kisan Sangathan (BKS) and representatives of the Agriculture Ministry failed in Noida.

Holding the BJP governments at the Centre and the State responsible for the poor state of the farm sector, the BKS had made 15 demands which include complete loan waiver, immediate payment of sugarcane crop dues, making electricity used in farming free and pension for aged farmers. The farmers also demanded that the cow maintenance fee set by the U.P. government at ₹30 per day should be increased to ₹300 per day. ‘We thought the Chief Minister of the State knew everything about cows and their maintenance. We want to tell him that if he is spending ₹30 per day on his cow, we are ready to accept ₹25,’ said Pooran Singh, national president of BKS.

He asked when Tikaula Mill in Muzaffarnagar could pay the sugarcane dues to the farmers, why can't others.

Farmers under the banner of Bhartiya Kisan Sangathan interact with officials in Noida on Friday.

ers. ‘There are many sugar mills which have paid only 35% of the existing dues,’ he claimed. When reminded that tractor and trolleys are not allowed in the national capital, according to a Supreme Court order, Mr. Singh said: ‘The Supreme Court has also said that the sugarcane dues should be paid within 14 days. Is anybody listening.’

Power price hike
On the issue of rise in electricity rates, Mr. Singh said when a farmer had no right on fixing the minimum support price of crops why should he pay for the electricity used in growing those crops. ‘It is the government that decides the price, so it should pay for the electricity.’

S.S. Tomar, a director in the Agriculture Ministry, and D.K. Pandey, adviser in the Agriculture Ministry, listened to the demands and found them genuine. They asked for 21 days to put them before the authorities concerned but the BKS leadership felt that it was just a way to buy time.

‘These are not demands, they are our rights, most of which were there in the BJP manifesto. We are not here to give a memorandum. We could have done it in Saharanpur. The government should have sent people who have the authority to take action on our demands,’ said Mr. Singh, who started the Kisan Mazdoor Adhikar Yatra from Saharanpur on September 11.

He added that if the government didn't take them seriously it would have to face the wrath of the farmers in the upcoming Assembly polls in three States and by-polls in Uttar Pradesh. ‘You could not get our vote only in the name of Ram temple and nationalism,’ Mr. Singh said. ‘If the farmer, soldier, and labour of the country go on even a three-day leave, the nation will cease to function.’

Law and order problem

The Noida police were still working with the Delhi police and district administration to resolve the stalemate. ‘We are still trying to convince the farmers but are not taking any chances in terms of law and order. We have no problem if they march peacefully to Delhi. The problem arises when they try to take their tractor-trolley along or camp on the road,’ said Vineet Jaiswal, SP (City), Noida.

CBI seeks 10 days' time to file chargesheet

Gang-rape case of minor in Unnao

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA NEW DELHI

The CBI Friday sought 10 days more to file chargesheet in the gang-rape case of a woman who was also allegedly sexually assaulted by expelled BJP MLA Kuldeep Singh Sengar in Unnao in 2017 when she was a minor.

District Judge Dharmesh Sharma, however, asked the CBI to complete its investigation in the case and file a chargesheet at the earliest possible as per the directions of the Supreme Court.

The apex court had on September 6 granted two weeks time to complete its probe in the case.

During Friday's hearing, senior public prosecutor Ashok Bhartendu, appearing for the CBI, told the court that the matter was

Rift in Rajasthan Congress over merger of BSP MLAs

Party may face difficulties in preparations for civic polls

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT JAIPUR

Amid speculations about a Cabinet reshuffle in Rajasthan after the merger of six BSP MLAs with the Congress, signs of rift and discontent have emerged in the ruling party. The infighting may create difficulties for the Congress which is preparing for the municipal elections due in November and planning to launch a membership drive in the State.

The BSP MLAs' defection to the Congress, just when reports of the Bharatiya Janata Party trying to lure them in a bid to repeat a Karnataka-type upheaval in Rajasthan had started appearing, has been perceived in political circles here as a ‘masterstroke’ of Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot. Senior BJP leaders in the State were left bewildered by the move.

The merger has taken the Congress's tally from 100 to 106 in the 200-member State Assembly, resulting in a setback to the BJP rather than the BSP. While affirming that the BSP was not in a position to form the government, Mr. Gehlot said here over the weekend that he was told that the BJP was offering up to ₹25 crore each to the Assembly members for switching sides.

‘Will affect morale’

Though the Congress members are happy that Mr. Gehlot has nipped the BJP's game plan in the bud, some of them feel that elevating the newly inducted BSP MLAs to the ministerial rank would affect the morale of party workers. The voices of dissent emerged at a meeting of Pradesh Congress Committee here on Friday.

Former Minister and PCC

vice-president Laxman Singh Rawat said rewarding the BSP MLAs with ministerial posts and other plum assignments would demotivate Congress MLAs and workers. He affirmed that appointing first-time winners as Ministers would send across a wrong message in the party's rank and file.

Though Mr. Gehlot has insisted that the six BSP MLAs had joined the Congress on their own for ensuring the government's stability, the merger was a replay of the 2009 events when six BSP MLAs had defected to the Congress which was five short of a clear majority in the House. Half of them were made Ministers and others were appointed Paliamentary Secretaries.

Though Deputy CM Sachin Pilot, who is also the PCC president, has defended the latest political developments, his recent utterances calling for ‘more attention’ to the law and order situation have been seen as criticism of the Home Ministry, which is headed by Mr. Gehlot.

Rajeev Kumar skips CBI summons for third time

He allegedly suppressed evidences in Saradha scam

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA KOLKATA

CBI officials on Friday went to various locations to trace former Kolkata Police Commissioner Rajeev Kumar after he again failed to turn up at the agency's office here in the morning in connection with the probe into the Saradha chit fund scam, sources in the agency said.

Mr. Kumar was summoned by the CBI to appear before its officials in connection with the multi-crore ponzi scam as he is alleged to have suppressed crucial pieces of evidences required to prepare the final chargesheet.

Officials of the CBI's Special Crime Branch formed teams and visited the official residence of Mr. Kumar, now Additional Director General of CID, on Park Street here, while another team went to a resort in South 24 Parganas to trace him, sources said.

On Thursday also, CBI sleuths had gone to the IPS officers' mess and a five-star hotel. This is the third occasion since Saturday that Mr. Kumar has defied CBI summons to appear before its team at the CGO complex of-face in Salt Lake.

The Calcutta High Court on Friday laid withdrew the protection granted to Mr. Kumar from the CBI taking any coercive action against him. The CBI had also sought the help of the West Bengal government to know his whereabouts.

In reply to a letter by the probe agency, State Director General of Police Virendra said Mr. Kumar was on leave from September 9 to 25, 2019.

Mr. Kumar was part of a special investigation team set up by the State government to investigate the Saradha scam before the Supreme Court handed over the case to the CBI in 2014 along with other chit fund cases.

The Saradha group of companies allegedly duped lakhs of people to the tune of ₹2,500 crore, promising higher rates of return on their investments.

MNS may enter fray, contest
over 40 seats

ALOK DESHPANDE
MUMBAI

After pondering for months whether it should contest the Assembly polls, and going silent for days in the wake of party chief Raj Thackeray's questioning by the Enforcement Directorate, the Maharashtra Navnirman Sena (MNS) finally seems to have decided to enter the fray.

At a meeting called by Mr. Thackeray on Friday, party workers from Mumbai demanded that the MNS contest the polls, unlike the general elections.

According to party sources, the MNS is likely to contest more than 40 seats in the Assembly polls. "Cities like Mumbai, Pune, Nasik and Aurangabad are on our radar, but we will target rural parts as well," said one MNS leader. When asked if the party will form an alliance with the Congress or Nationalist Congress Party, he said no such decision has been taken.

MNS general secretary Anil Shidore said Mr. Thackeray is taking views from local leaders. "We are not in a hurry. Let the Election Commission announce the poll dates. We will open our cards at the right time. We will take a decision best suited for the party and its future growth," he told The Hindu. The party has another meeting on Saturday.

Despite Modi's snub, Thackeray hopeful of alliance with BJP

Sena chief says no tension among allies, seat shares to be announced in 2-3 days

ALOK DESHPANDE
MUMBAI

A day after Prime Minister Narendra Modi did not even mention the Shiv Sena in his speech at the Bharatiya Janata Party's (BJP) rally in Nashik, Sena chief Uddhav Thackeray on Friday said the two parties would contest the Assembly polls together and announce the seat-sharing arrangement in two to three days.

"The seat-sharing formula was decided at the time of the Lok Sabha elections between three of us [Mr. Thackeray, BJP president Amit Shah and Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis]. We are firm on that. The announcement of the alliance will be made soon," Mr. Thackeray told the media. He said there is no tension between both the parties.

Mr. Shah will be in Mumbai on Sunday, and a decision on the alliance is likely to be taken then.

The Sena chief said it was he who had requested the Chief Minister to prepare a list of candidates. "I told him that after getting the list from him, I will discuss with my leaders and a final decision will be taken," he said, adding that his earlier statement on this was not sarcastic. "It was the media which spread reports that both parties will contest 135 seats each," he said.

'No backstabbing'

Reacting to Mr. Modi's comment on the stable government in the last five years, the Sena chief said his party did not betray the BJP. "The BJP did not have a majority. We supported the government without backstabbing it. I am happy the Sena has been a part of State's development in these years."

Commenting on the proposal to remove trees in Aarey colony for a Metro car shed, on which the Sena and BJP appear to have locked horns, Mr. Thackeray said the party's opposition was

Of course, we have trust in the judiciary. This case has been in courts for years. That's why I visited Ayodhya. If possible, I may visit again before the polls neither to development nor the Metro project. "Our opposition to cutting trees in Aarey is based on facts," he said. Reacting to Mr. Fadnavis's statement that the government could reconsider scrapping the refinery project in Nanar, the Sena chief said if decisions are retracted in such a manner then people will stop trusting the government.

'Hindu sentiments'

Going on the defensive after Mr. Modi's taunt at certain 'badbole' (loudmouth) leaders talking about the Ram temple, Mr. Thackeray said he isn't making comments, but only voicing the sentiments of the Hindus. "Of course, we have trust in the judiciary. This case has been in courts for many years. That's why I visited Ayodhya. If possible, I may visit Ayodhya again before the Assembly polls. If the PM is saying we should wait for the court order, then it is absolutely right," he said.

BJP campaign to focus on Article 370,
Cong. on economy

ALOK DESHPANDE
MUMBAI

While the Congress focuses on issues related to farmers and the economy, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) is set to highlight the abrogation of Article 370 in Jammu & Kashmir on the campaign trail for Assembly polls.

With BJP national president Amit Shah set to kick off the Rashtriya Ekta Abhiyan from Mumbai on Sunday, the party has planned a rally in each constituency, focusing on Article 370.

A number of senior BJP leaders, including executive president J.P. Nadda, Ram Madhav, Lok Sabha MP and former Mumbai police commissioner Satyapal Singh, and spokespersons Sambit Patra and Gaurav Bhatia, will address rallies at different district headquarters. Mr. Nadda will be in Pune on September 23, while Ram Madhav will be in Aurangabad on September 29. Mr. Singh will address a rally in Satara in front of retired Army officers and families of soldiers who died on duty.

The leaders will meet eminent personalities to inform them about the abrogation of Article 370 and its importance. State BJP secretary Rajesh Pande, who is coordinating the Abhiyan in the State, said the party will approach around 4,000 prominent personalities with its message. "Senior leaders will address public meetings at the district level, but similar rallies will be organised in each constituency. The Abhiyan will continue till the first week of October," he said.

Congress strategy

The Congress, meanwhile, is focusing on the economy and farmers' problems. "The BJP-Shiv Sena government's claim of having given the country's biggest loan waiver of ₹34,000 crore to 89 lakh farmers has proved to be false. More than 50% farmers are yet to benefit from the scheme," Congress spokesperson Sachin Sawant said. He said that as on August 31, the government had waived loans worth ₹18,761 crore of 44, 04,147 farmers, keeping nearly 45 lakh farmers waiting.

Addressing a press conference in Mumbai, Congress spokesperson Gaurav Valabh said bank loans to industries in Maharashtra declined for the first time in 30 years in 2018. "The government should declare how much foreign investment came into the State through the Make in Maharashtra initiative and publish online district-wise data on how many new businesses are being set up," he said.

Pansare case:
3 in judicial custody till
October 4

SHOUMJOIT BANERJEE
PUNE

A local court in Kolhapur on Friday remanded Sachin Andure, named by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) to be one of the shooters of rationalist Dr. Narendra Dabholkar, and two others in judicial custody till October 4 in connection with the 2015 murder of Communist leader Govind Pansare.

The Special Investigation Team (SIT) of the Maharashtra Police probing the case produced Mr. Andure along with Ganesh Miskin and Amit Baddi (who are also named in the murders of scholar M.M. Kalburgi and journalist Gauri Lankesh) in the court of judge S.S. Raul on expiry of their police custody.

After the SIT submitted that it had no further need of their custody, the judge directed that the three be remanded in magisterial custody. Mr. Andure will be sent back to Yerwada Central Jail in Pune, where he is being held for Dabholkar's murder, while Mr. Miskin and Mr. Baddi will be shifted to Mumbai's Arthur Road Jail, where they are being lodged in connection with the 2018 Nallasopara arms haul case.

Till now, 12 people have been named in the Pansare murder case.

Elgar Parishad: no
proof against Ferreira, lawyer tells HC

SONAM SAIGAL
MUMBAI

The advocate appearing for activist Arun Ferreira, one of the accused in the Elgar Parishad case, told the Bombay High Court on Friday that the Pune Police had arrested the activist only based on documents and letters recovered from computers of the other co-accused in the case. He said there was no corroborative evidence to implicate Mr. Ferreira in the Bhima Koregaon violence.

Arguing for the activist's bail, advocate Sudeep Pasbola also told a Single Bench of Justice S.V. Kotwal that he was being targeted because he had assisted advocate Surendra Gadling, also lodged at Yerwada jail with him, in a case pertaining to activities of the CPI (Maoist) before the Nagpur Bench of the High Court.

Mr. Pasbola told the Bench that Mr. Ferreira was behind bars for nearly five years after being wrongly implicated – and later acquitted – in 12 cases in 2007.

He said Mr. Ferreira was an office-bearer of the Indian Association of People's Lawyers (IAPL), which was headed by Mr. Gadling. Sudha Bharadwaj, also an accused in the case, was its vice-president.

Mr. Pasbola said the IAPL

was not a banned organisation under the Unlawful Activities Prevention Act, but the fact that Mr. Ferreira had participated in the golden jubilee celebrations of the CPI (Maoist) movement held under the aegis of the IAPL was being taken as evidence to implicate him in the Bhima-Koregaon riots and Elgar Parishad.

Mr. Pasbola said Mr. Ferreira's name only came up in the documents recovered from the computers of Mr. Gadling and another accused, Rona Wilson, and that there was no mention of him in either the riots or the Elgar Parishad.

The hearing will continue on September 23. After hearing arguments in the bail applications of Vernon Gonsalves and Ms. Bharadwaj, the court is now hearing Mr. Ferreira's bail plea.

The Andhra Pradesh government announced on Friday that it had finalised the contract for a portion of works related to the Polavaram irrigation project via reverse tendering, claiming that it had made “savings of ₹58.53 crore” in the process.

The government finalised tenders for package 65 – Polavaram left connectivity – on Friday. Hyderabad-based MAX Infra (I) Limited bagged the contract. While six companies were in the fray, MAX Infra emerged as LI bidder.

After the completion of the reverse auction process, the firm quoted ₹231.46 crore, which is 15.6% less than the estimated cost value (ECV) of ₹274.25 crore. The savings from the previous agreement (during the previous government) and the present agreement value is ₹58.53 crore, said a press release from the government.

Reduction in cost

Incidentally, the same company had bagged the contract during the TDP regime. The firm then quoted 4.7% excess over ECV of ₹276.80 crore. The works were earlier awarded at ₹292.09 crore. The agency executed works for a value of ₹2.55 crore (0.92% approximately) as on August 17 this year against the value, and expenditure was not incurred so far. Patel Engineering Limited, Mumbai; MEGA Engineering and Infrastructure Limited, Hyderabad; AFCONS Infrastructure Limited, Mumbai; MRKR-SLR(JV) Hyderabad and RRCIPL-

WCPL Consortium, Hyderabad, were other firms that participated in the bidding.

On the other hand, the financial bids for Polavaram will be opened on September 23.

The financial bids were submitted for head works, spillway, spill channel and the earth-cum-rockfill dam. The government stated that the tender value of the main dam was ₹1,771 crore.

Technical bids

After opening the technical bids, Water Resources Minister P. Anil Kumar said it was a good development as the government could save about ₹50 crore through reverse tendering. The financial bids will throw light on how much public money can be saved further, he said.

The State government went ahead with the reverse tendering after an experts committee found that irregularities had taken place in awarding the contracts.

It's re-tenders, not reverse tenders: Naidu

STAFF REPORTER

Former Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister and TDP national president N. Chandrababu Naidu alleged that the YSRCP government had called for “re-tenders”, and not “reverse tenders”, for the Polavaram project by diluting the conditions for awarding it to contractors close to the establishment.

Finding fault with the finalisation of price bids ahead of the technical bids, Mr. Naidu alleged, “By doing so, the government has flouted norms.”

The government had paid no heed to the warnings of the Polavaram Project Authority (PPA) as well, Mr. Naidu claimed.

Order in Maradu case will be executed: Kerala

But voices some concerns in affidavit

K.S. SUDHI
KOCHI

The Kerala government, which assured the Supreme Court that it will implement its directives in “letter and spirit,” has expressed apprehension about the impact of the demolition of the Maradu apartments on environment and human life.

The State voiced its concerns in an affidavit filed by Chief Secretary Tom Jose in the court on Friday, the deadline for the demolition of Holy Faith H20, Jain Housing, Alfa Serene, and Golden Kavaloram apartments that had been constructed in violation of the Coastal Regulation Zone guidelines.

The government had taken steps to deal with the demolition with utmost care and concern. An expert opinion from the Indian Institute of Technology, Madras, had been received, he submitted.

While stating that the demolition process would require appropriate technology and machinery for razing the structures and expeditious disposal of debris, the State submitted that there were “space constraints for the proper disposal of the waste/debris”. If the buildings are “demolished in one go without carrying out proper study and planning, it will result in larger ecological disaster, seriously prejudicing the inhabitants and environment of even the nearby places,” he stated.

The State further submitted that “this is one of the first instances of demolition of buildings of this magnitude and nature. It is also a fact that the department concerned lacks experience and expertise in handling this situation in a very short time”, Mr. Jose submitted.

Placing the responsibility of implementing the court order on the Maradu municipality, Mr. Jose explained the steps taken by the government after the May 8 order for demolition. He also elaborated on the measures initiated by the secretary of the Maradu municipality, including serving eviction notices and inviting expression of interest from specialised agencies with expertise in controlled implosion.

Mr. Jose, who tendered his “unqualified apology” for any aspect of his conduct, which the court might have construed as not in accordance with its order, also requested that he be exempted from personal appearance. He promised to monitor the implementation of the court order.

Meet of DGPs discusses draft policy on drones

Nodal officer for coordination will be appointed by all States

MARRI RAMU
HYDERABAD

Issues relating to what types of drones can be permitted and the formulation of a policy on their usage came up for discussion at a meeting of DGPs of southern States here on Friday.

With individuals and private companies planning extensive usage of drones for purposes like video coverage of events to agriculture, the Centre wanted to evolve a drone policy.

This point was taken up at the recently held meeting of the DGPs of all States in New Delhi by the Centre.

It was decided to constitute five regional coordination committees and discuss the finer details on issues relating to law and order.

Special invitee

On Friday, the DGPs of Karnataka, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Telangana – Neelamani N. Raju, Lokanath Behera, J.K. Tripathy, D. Gautam Sawang and M. Mahender Reddy – respectively attended the Regional Coordination Committee meeting.

Maharashtra DGP Subodh Kumar Jaiswal participated as a special invitee.

“Already, the Centre is allowing drones weighing 400 gm or less. But the problem is most of the drones being used while covering marriages or meant for areas like precision agriculture weigh more than that,” a top police official said. The committee will prepare a draft policy and present it to the Centre for its consideration.

Though the meeting of the top police brass was held amidst security alerts in the backdrop of the Formation Day (September 21) of the outlawed CPI (Maoist), it was not related to the Left wing extremism.

Bengal Governor, State at loggerheads

The 'rescue' of Minister Babul Supriyo from university sets off controversy

STAFF REPORTER KOLKATA
The newly appointed Governor of West Bengal Jagdeep Dhankar has taken on State Education Minister and Trinamool Congress secretary general Partha Chatterjee over incidents of violence on the campus of Jadavpur University in Kolkata on Thursday evening.
The Governor had intervened to personally escort Minister of State for Environment, Forest and Climate Change Babul Supriyo from the campus amid protests and heckling from students, who objected to his presence.
Mr. Chatterjee had claimed that Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee had requested the Governor not to go to the university at the peak of commotion and to "give the government some time to peacefully solve the issue."

"This is most unfortunate and shocking that our Governor, the custodian of the Constitution of the State, without informing the elected government went to the so-called rescue of the BJP leader from Jadavpur University... Chief Minister requested him several times that the Governor being the constitutional head need not go at this moment. The CM requested him to give the government some time to peacefully solve the issue," Mr. Chatterjee said.
A press note issued by Mr. Dhankar's office said, the Minister was not aware of the developments that took place before the Governor went to the University to rescue Mr. Supriyo. "Obviously, he did not know of the developments that took place between the Governor and the DGP [Director General of Police]/ CS [Chief Secretary] as also the conversation with the Honorable Chief Minister," the press note said.

Mr. Supriyo, along with designer Agnimitra Paul, had gone to the campus to attend a seminar organised by the Akhil Bhartiya Vidarthi Parishad (ABVP) on Thursday. However, several students had protested against their entry by raising black flags and asked him to leave. The situation escalated when Mr. Supriyo refused to budge. As tensions rose, he remained stuck inside the college premises till the Governor arrived at around 8 p.m. and escorted him out.
Meanwhile, members of ABVP and BJP forcefully entered the college premises, vandalised university property and beat up some students.
Trinamool issued a statement on Friday, reiterating Mr. Chatterjee's "stand" and argued that it "must be made very clear [that] universities are autonomous institutions and as per time-honoured tradition, police cannot enter university campus with-

A fourth of Indians consider dementia 'dangerous'

Three fourths of those surveyed term patients impulsive and unpredictable

JACOB KOSHY NEW DELHI
Almost a quarter of Indians surveyed said that they considered those suffering from dementia to be "dangerous" and about three-fourths said that those with dementia are "impulsive and unpredictable," according to a report released by Alzheimer's Disease International (ADI), a London-based non-profit organisation.
The survey by the London School of Economics (LSE) was meant to gauge attitudes towards dementia among the general public, health practitioners and care givers and surveyed about 70,000 people in 155 countries.
Some of those surveyed were dementia patients.
The study estimates that as much as 50% of all people living with dementia never receive a formal diagnosis and in China and India, this lack of diagnosis is much higher, perhaps as high as 70-90%.
The number of those with dementia worldwide is set to increase to 152 million by 2050, according to the report. The current annual cost of dementia is estimated at $1 trillion (approximately), a figure that is set to double by 2030.
"In the survey analysis, we highlight the behavioural element first, giving promiin the elderly increases, according to a 2018 report in the Indian Journal of Psychiatry.

The ADI report, made public on Friday on the eve of Alzheimer's Day, finds that 95% of global respondents think they will develop dementia in their lifetime and 78% are concerned about developing dementia at some point.
One in 4 believe that there is nothing you can do about dementia and 2 out of 3 think dementia is caused by normal ageing. Just under 40% of the public think that there are adequate community services for people living with dementia and for carers and just under 70% of people think there are adequate competent physicians for the diagnosis and treatment of dementia.

Forecast for Saturday: Heavy to very heavy rainfall likely over places like Saurashtra, Kutch, Andaman & Nicobar Islands, Nagaland, Manipur, Mizoram, Tripura, Gujarat, central Maharashtra, Konkan, Goa, Tamil Nadu and Puducherry.

A deep cut

Tax cuts have enthused Corporate India, but there is the fiscal problem to deal with Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman ushered in Deepavali early for Corporate India and the markets on Friday with her announcement of deep cuts in corporate taxes and roll-back of some market-unfriendly proposals in the Budget she presented in July. The move to cut corporate taxes, for which an ordinance has already been issued by the government, is on a par with if not higher than the sentiment-boosting ‘dream budget’ of 1997 when the then Finance Minister P. Chidambaram cut taxes with gusto. Corporate tax rate has been cut to 22% from 30% for companies that do not avail exemptions – this means that the effective tax rate for such companies will fall from 34.94% presently to 25.17% which is a significant saving indeed. Similarly, for companies that are incorporated after October 1 and whose projects will be commissioned before March 31, 2023, the tax rate will be as low as 15% (compared to 25% currently). The effective tax rate for this category of companies will be 17.01%, about 12 percentage points lower than what prevails now. The idea behind this move is obviously to generate private investment which is now at a low ebb, but an unstated intention could also be to attract foreign investors looking for alternative sites for their global value chains disrupted now by the tariff war between China and the U.S. With these cuts, the government has delivered on a long-standing demand of Corporate India. The onus is now on the latter to deliver, not just in terms of fresh investment but also in passing on the benefit of lower taxes down the chain to consumers and investors.

Where do the tax cuts leave the government and the fisc? Ms. Sitharaman said that the revenue foregone is ₹1,45,000 crore. This is very significant, especially in the context of the over-estimation of revenues in the Budget and the under-performance in terms of tax collections so far this year. The 2019-20 Budget assumes net tax revenues of ₹16.49 lakh crore, which is a rather ambitious 25% growth estimate over the actual revenues of ₹13.16 lakh crore in 2018-19. If the revenue foregone now is weighed against this unrealistic Budget target on which the fiscal arithmetic is based, the outlook for the projected deficit this year will be scary for sure. It is a no-brainer that the deficit target of 3.3% for this fiscal is unattainable, as things stand. The bounty of ₹1.75 lakh crore received from the Reserve Bank of India as dividend is obviously a cushion and it is this money that the government has now given away. But if the fiscal deficit target is to be met, then the gap from the original over-estimation of revenues has to be bridged. The one route open to the government is to go big on disinvestment where it has already budgeted ₹1,05,000 crore for this year. The actual proceeds should be about double that this fiscal if the original arithmetic is to work. That is not going to be easy. The corporate tax cuts are certainly good for the economy in the medium term but in the short term, until revenues bounce back, the government has a fiscal problem on its hands.

A rural stimulus

Putting more money in the hands of rural households will stir up the economy

The government’s statistical machinery has begun work on revising the indices that capture the trends in consumer prices experienced in rural India. This opens up the prospect for an upward revision in the wages paid out to workers under the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA). The current national average wage is just about ₹178 per day. The decision to finally embark on a long-overdue exercise is welcome, irrespective of the immediate trigger. The basket of items whose prices are tracked for constructing the Consumer Price Index for Agricultural Labourers (CPI-AL), for instance, has not been updated for at least three decades. Apart from essential spending on food, rural expenditure patterns have altered significantly in the intervening period, making space for higher spending on services such as education, transport and, of course, telecom. But two-thirds of the dated inflation index is still driven by food prices, which may effectively end up understating the price pressures facing rural households. This depressant effect could be accentuated when low food inflation coincides with decelerating farm incomes that still drive India’s rural economy. Once a new basket is constructed, the Statistics Ministry, along with the Labour Bureau, plans to improve the currency of the CPI-AL (to which MGNREGA wages are linked) and CPI-Rural indices with annual reviews.

If the index revision concludes soon enough, the Centre is geared up to notify updated MGNREGA wages in the current fiscal year itself rather than wait for the onset of 2020-2021. This sense of urgency suggests the government views giving a fillip to the rural economy as a critical tool to combat the headwinds of the slowing economy. The slowdown narrative (and the Centre’s measures to address it) so far has been dominated by urban India’s consumption crimp and easing the corporate tax structure, but the distress in villages where incomes are more vulnerable is more disconcerting. The Reserve Bank of India, in its annual report, has pointed to weakening rural demand since the third quarter of 2018-19 as a serious concern and termed reviving consumption as its top policy priority. Reflecting rural distress, demand for work under the MGNREGA has been rising. With job creation in a flux and sentiment about the economy worsening, any move to put more money into rural households’ ‘sticky’ spending kitty would likely have a better pay-off towards stirring up the economy than shopping fests and tax sops for urban India.

One people, many countries

The Indian American gathering in Houston will be an unlikely reminder of the futility of the claims of ultra-nationalism

VARGHESE K. GEORGE

Around 50,000 Indian Americans are expected to attend a rally in Houston, Texas on September 22 to be addressed by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and U.S. President Donald Trump, current leaders of the world’s largest and oldest democracies. In multiple dimensions, this event will showcase the paradoxes in the politics of the two protagonists and their primary audience, the Indian American community. The event might spur self-reflection among some, but could harden the positions for many and sharpen the polarisation in the community.

Many of the attendees at the rally would have taken the oath of allegiance to become U.S. citizens, in which they are required to “absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign... state”, where they were citizens earlier – in this case, India. The rest will be largely those waiting for the opportunity to “voluntarily” do so. They will be singing ‘Vande Mataram’ and ‘Bharat Mata Ki Jai’, salutations to the motherland which is India, as it had happened at earlier gatherings of the Indian diaspora in the U.S. and elsewhere addressed by Mr. Modi.

Contours of a project

Naturalisation requires one to abjure allegiance to a foreign country, but America allows dual citizenship. Though India does not allow dual citizenship, the societies in both countries are largely accepting of multiple identities. However, Mr. Trump and Mr. Modi lead politics that seeks to assert and privilege a national identity by subordinating particularities, and rebuild their nations into puritan, unitary communities. This project also involves, in both countries, a massive state drive to identify, isolate, detain and possibly expel people who are suspected to be intruders into the nation. The India of Mr. Modi’s Hindutva dreams, advancing rapidly under his rule, will be “one nation” with one people, one language, one religion, one election, one market, and one everything – a homogeneous, Hindu utopia. The Houston rally could be an opportunity for both leaders to see up close the fallacy of this pursuit. It will be one people cheering leaders of two countries that they divide their loyalty for. The irony is that Mr. Modi and Mr. Trump ride populism that targets various minorities for fractured loyalties.

Politics within and outside

Seeking absolute and unalloyed loyalty to the nation from the entire population, expressed as unquestioning fealty to the regime, is the fulcrum of Mr. Modi’s politics within India, but abroad he seeks and encourages the Indian diaspora to maintain dual loyalties – for India and their host countries. He wants to influence American politics through spectacular shows of his popularity among American citizens who are being called upon to further the interests of India. Adulation and endorsement in the U.S. will amplify Mr. Modi’s support in India. Mr. Trump is using Mr. Modi’s popularity among Indian Americans to advance his domestic politics of undermining American pluralism; and the Hindutva champions, who are at the helm of diaspora politics in the U.S., are helping his cause, harming their self-interest.

Mr. Trump has taken a leaf out of the book of their common friend and the leader of the only democracy in West Asia, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who tried to use his projected proximity with Russian President Vladimir Putin to drum up support for himself among Russian-speaking Israeli citizens in his re-election bid. He lost.

Indian American Hindutva groups, largely upper caste Indians, are advocates of minority rights in the U.S., but simultaneously and contradictorily supportive or uncritical of cultural supremacism and majoritarianism in India. Mr. Modi’s followers in the U.S. want American Democrats to fight back Mr. Trump’s cultural supremacism that belittles them and their culture. They demand as a right, the American green card and passport, and the Modi government has supported such claims for more opportunities for Indians in bilateral talks with the U.S. But they want American Democrats to keep their mouths shut about the rights of those living in India for generations – whether in Kashmir or those who are arbitrarily being asked to prove their citizenship though they never took an oath abjuring and renouncing India. India-friendly voices in American politics are under attack by Hindutva groups in the U.S. for speaking up for constitutionalism and pluralism in India. Hindutva groups in the U.S. even want Indian American Democratic lawmakers to subordinate American interests to India’s.

Ro Khanna, U.S. Representative from California’s 17th Congressional District, located in the heart of Silicon Valley, is being singled out by these groups for his association with the Pakistan Caucus, as if they are fighting the India-Pakistan rivalry in America. Mr. Khanna is an unequivocal and strong supporter of a pluralist America, and

An independent fiscal watchdog for Parliament

A Parliament Budget Office can help drive smarter, more focused debate in the media and with the electorate

VARUN SRIVATSAN

When most people arrive at the ballot box, they vote with their gut. But getting there requires absorbing and shaping months and years of conversations, long-held opinions and ideally, hard facts and evidence.

What is then important for our electorate and the representatives we vote for is that they have an independent, non-partisan source for these hard facts and evidence. This is particularly important for our Parliament, which controls where and how money flows into our government and our country. This body needs to be appointed not based on political allegiance or expediency, but on its expertise in budgetary, fiscal and economic matters.

Regardless of a majority or minority government, this body serves parliamentarians equally and without prejudice. Even in a majority government, besides the few Ministers privy to expertise from the civil service, most parliamentarians do not benefit from timely access to good quality analysis on economic, fiscal or financial matters.

This body exists in many countries around the world, going by many names but most commonly as Parliamentary Budget Offices (PBOs). These bodies help shape the debate and discourse around the state of the nation’s finances and the fiscal implications of significant proposals. The work done by PBOs naturally ends up in the public sphere; when they do, they help drive smarter, more focused debate in the media and with our electorate.

What distinguishes India’s democracy, besides its diversity of views and opinions wrought by its size, is its ability to evolve and remain dynamic. What is gravely in danger is evidence-based discussion around important policies that affect the trajectory of our Republic, discussions which can quickly blur the line between fact and fiction.

Defence costing

Take an example: the Rafale deal with Dassault Aviation. Part of the controversy resulted from uncertainty regarding the true lifecycle costs of the aircraft bought. In 2011, the Canadian PBO released a cost estimate for Canada’s purchase of F-35 jets. This estimate far exceeded the one presented by the Department of National Defence.

Defence costing, typically the purview of the Defence Ministry, was a completely new area of analysis, information and research that parliamentarians could now access to hold the government to account. Besides costing policies and programmes, PBOs provide significant and sometimes the sole source of information on fiscal and economic projections.

The role of such an office does not always mean challenging the government; it is often the case that economic and fiscal projections of a PBO and the Ministry of Finance are similar. This is unsurprising as data sources and economic methodologies for such projections are well established and uniform.

However, without the existence of another data point, generated by an independent, non-partisan office, it is difficult for parliamentarians to ensure that these projections and estimates continue to be reliable enough for them to make decisions on.

When these projections come into question, the Cabinet can tap the civil service for further research and analysis. Most parliamentarians do not have this luxury and may have to rely on poor quality third-party data and analysis, done without relevant expertise. This is a situation that must be avoided.

Co-existing with the AG

A question – and a reasonable one – that often arises is the necessity of such an office when we already have an auditor general. However, this misunderstands the role the auditor general performs, which is to provide retrospective audits and analysis of the financial accounts and performance of government operations.

These audits are often focused on the day-to-day goings on of government, and often hone in on the performance of the civil service. A PBO provides prospective, forward-looking economic and fiscal projections, as well as policy costings. This distinguishes it from an auditor general, which provides useful information, but only after the fact.

Internationally, similar offices have been established across the world, with the most prominent being the Congressional Budget Office in the United States which provides impartial advice to both upper and lower houses of the legislature. Offices in the Netherlands, Korea, Australia and the United Kingdom have also been established for varying lengths of time. PBOs are also making an appearance in emerging economies in Sub-Saharan Africa and Southeast Asia. In some countries, including Australia, the Netherlands, and most recently, Canada, PBOs have been playing the unique role of costing electoral platforms during an election campaign. In this period, PBOs provide independent cost estimates of electoral platform measures to political parties. A PBO, or a similar independent fiscal institution, will not solve all these problems but is a relatively cost-efficient way to arrive at a solution. As the process toward the Union Budget 2020 has already kicked off, it would be prudent for parliamentarians to examine the case for a PBO more deeply. The amount of information parliamentarians need to scrutinise in Budget documents has exponentially increased and a PBO would assist parliamentarians in this process of scrutiny. Legislatures across the world have witnessed an increasingly stronger executive try to wrest away its rightful power of the purse. A PBO would help resuscitate these powers that have fallen into disuse. This is why India’s Parliament and government need to work quickly and energetically to establish such an office; it is in everyone’s interests to do so.

Rebuilding J&K

It is pleasing to hear the new slogan that has been coined on Kashmir: ‘Naya Kashmir banana hai’ (Page 1, “Hug each Kashmiri, build new paradise”, September 20). But “when” is the moot question. If one is to go by some of the coverage on the situation in Jammu and Kashmir, this seems very unlikely in the near future. The reports in the inside pages are proof of this (“Now, schools turn recreation centres” and “J&K global investors’ summit put off”, both September 20). When children are affected, there will be a corresponding impact on their future. Kashmir must become the paradise it is fabled to be but in a transparent, inclusive way.

D. SETHURAMAN,
Chennai

■ The official pronouncements have not been backed by tangible improvements in Valley. It is for the government to ensure some good tidings and as long as it is found wanting, people find it hard to believe the official versions. The speech in Nashik appears to be a feeble attempt to drum up support for the upcoming State Assembly election.

ABDUL ASSIS P.A.,
Thrissur, Kerala

■ New paradises are not built overnight. It takes years and years to build them. In fact, paradises are not built per se. They evolve through a natural process. The Prime Minister should have tried to influence that natural process. In the case of Kashmir, the only way to make it a paradise is to give it some semblance of independence. Our Constitution can accommodate Kashmiriyat.

C.V. VENUGOPALAN,
Palakkad, Kerala

■ The intent to build a new Kashmir – which can truly be the paradise it is fabled to be – would have been more convincing had steps been taken before the major surgery. Having carried out the sudden and drastic operation, appeasement and the healing will be a long-drawn-out and complicated process

Loan melas

It goes without saying that the proposed “loan melas” are bound to be a headache for the government in the near future. One fails to see the rationale behind the Finance Minister saying that no MSME-stressed loan would be classified as a non-performing asset till March 31, 2020. Such loan melas were held under the Congress regime and turned out to be a damp squib. It is no wonder then that these loans turned out to be the bad debts and the banks concerned were asked to write them off in order to present a rosy picture of balance sheets.

S.K. GUPTA,
New Delhi

■ The lending of soft loans with undesirable relaxations in lending norms of banks could prove to be disastrous to the banking industry which is already in turmoil. The aggressive campaign and loan melas by commercial banks could push people even with weak financial profiles to become the debtors and eventually become defaulters that can only add to mounting non-performing assets. Banks will become the casualty. The stimulus packages and soft loans to boost the economy can be termed piecemeal solutions at best.

A lake in the cross-hairs of development

Residents of four high-rise apartment complexes along the Vembanad lake in Maradu, Kerala, are protesting against a recent Supreme Court order to raze down their homes, reportedly built in flagrant violation of CRZ guidelines. K.S. Sudhi chronicles the controversy

Following a Supreme Court ultimatum in early September, life has taken an unexpected turn for I. Balachandran, 63, and Parvathy, 55, a sprightly couple who were leading a sedate life at a premium luxury river-view apartment in Maradu, Ernakulam. The duo turned protesters probably for the first time in their lives on September 6, the day the order came, to protect their dwelling at Alfa Serene, an apartment complex on the banks of the Vembanad lake, a wetland designated under the Ramsar Convention.

The apex court's directive called for the demolition of the complex, and of three other high-rise residential structures, by September 20, for violating Coastal Regulation Zone (CRZ) guidelines. Following the ruling, the couple, along with 350 other families, have been plunged into deep gloom.

The order came as a rude shock not just to residents living in the four complexes – Alfa Serene, Holy Faith H2O, Jain Coral Cove and Golden Kayaloram – all built along the lake in the Maradu municipality, but also to the State government. The Supreme Court judges, annoyed with the non-implementation of earlier court orders, asked the Kerala government to complete the task by September 20 and file a report on September 23, when the court is to consider the case again.

Protests and rallies

Following the directive, Balachandran and Parvathy, along with the other affected residents, have begun organising themselves to impress upon the State government that they have done no wrong. Every day at 8.30 a.m., they join other protesters at H2O Holy Faith. From shouting slogans to meeting political leaders paying a visit in solidarity and giving sound bites to TV cameras and interacting with journalists, they spend their day at the apartment's portico, which has come to resemble the venue of a public agitation. It is at around 8.30 p.m. that they retire to their home, at the close of a tiring day of shouting slogans. Flags of all political parties are seen stuck on the imposing 10-feet tall gates of the flat complex. Those conducting political rallies in solidarity with the residents converge here, with fiery speeches electrifying the environment.

"Hands off my home," cries the badge that Parvathy has pinned to her cream-coloured dupatta. "The rhythm of our life has changed dramatically over the last few days and I am unable to focus on my business. Most part of the day is spent here, participating in the agitation, garnering support from the general public and political parties and discussing the strategies with others who too are facing the same threat," says Balachandran.

"There has not been any outing, entertainment, or even laughter in our lives since the court verdict," laments Parvathy, sitting on the steps of the apartment on a windy afternoon. "We fully respect the Supreme Court verdict but believe that the judgment is the outcome of an erroneous report. We are innocent buyers who are frightened about losing our homes for no fault of ours," says Balachandran.

Riding on the demand for waterfront apartments in the early years of the millennium, many builders constructed complexes on the banks of rivers and lakes in Kerala, often in blatant violation of environmental guidelines and laws that govern development activities in the ecologically sensitive coastal belt. The Supreme Court's order suggests that it cannot be business as usual anymore for the developers. If the floods of last year dented the quest for such structures, the apex court order this year has caused thousands of families that have set up their homes in high-rises close to water bodies across the State to press the panic button.

Following the ultimatum, the Maradu high-rises seem to have become a talking point and the State government has been left with the constitutional obligation to execute the order. This unprecedented development has also brought together almost all political parties in Kerala who feel that a humane approach is needed when dealing with the demolition order.

From the State secretary of the ruling CPI(M) to MPs and MLAs of various political shades, all have thrown their weight behind the apartment owners. However, former Chief Minister and veteran CPI(M) leader V.S. Achuthanandan, former State Congress president V.M. Sudheeran and CPI State secretary Kanam Rajendran have struck a different note, demanding the strict implementation of the order and action against the erring builders.

As discussions on the issue dominate the State's social and political spaces, the residents of the apartments have defied the eviction notice served by the Maradu municipality and resolved not to move out. Some have even threatened to end their lives if their homes are demolished, making it a volatile issue for the authorities.

Noted filmmaker Blessy, a resident of Holy Faith H2O, who is originally from Thiruvalla, bought his apartment here as "most of the work related to the film industry was taking place in the city [Kochi]." However, unlike most apartment owners, who bought directly from the builders, Blessy bought his flat from a long-time acquaintance.

"Before buying it, I got all the documents vetted by a lawyer. Some of the banks had also issued loans for other apartments in the building. I checked the legal status of the buildings with Major Ravi, another filmmaker who was the president of the association of the residents. He too gave the green signal and I purchased it," says Blessy. "The Maradu municipality had issued all the relevant certificates. I had also been paying the property tax. One tends to count on these certificates as proof of the genuineness and the legal validity of the structures," explains the filmmaker.

"We had no inkling of the legal tangles until news about the court cases began trickling in," says Shamsudheen Karunagapally, a lawyer coordinating the protests. "Would anyone knowingly pay for a building that is likely to invite invite legal trouble for its residents?" he asks. Interestingly, the list of owners of these structures includes some lawyers, who are also now actively involved in defending their homes from being destroyed. The residents are knocking all doors in their desperate efforts to save their homes and have appealed to the President, the Prime Minister, the Kerala Governor, and MPs and MLAs from the State, seeking their intervention.

Legal battle on since 2007

It all began in 2007 when the Maradu panchayat, which was later elevated to a municipality, issued a show-cause notice to five builders, citing violations of CRZ norms, Floor Area Ratio and other rules. The vigilance wing of the Local Self Government Department of the State government had detected anomalies in the issue of building permits and directed the local body to revoke the permits. When the case reached the Kerala High Court the same year, a Single Judge allowed a writ petition filed by the builders. Later, a Division Bench ruled that the builders could not be taken to task for not referring the building applications to Kerala Coastal Zone Management Authority (KCZMA) for a 'No-Objection Certificate' – a mandatory clearance. Though the Authority sought to review the decision, the High Court didn't entertain it.

It was a Special Leave Petition filed by the KCZMA in the Supreme Court against the Kerala High Court's order that turned out to be the game-changer in Kerala, whose 580-km long coastline is dotted with thousands of constructions including homes, hotels, commercial buildings and resorts.

Incidentally, the Supreme Court had, in 2013, highlighted the ecological importance of the Vembanad lake system in a verdict in which it upheld a decision of the Kerala High Court to demolish some illegal constructions made along the lake. Following the decision, a resort on the Vettila Thuruthu – an island in the lake – demolished parts of its structure identified as illegal. The case of Kapico resorts, another massive structure erected on the Nedyiathuruthu island in the lake, is still pending.

The court had then observed that the lake was "undergoing severe environmental degradation due to increased human intervention."

Suo motu action

Initiating suo motu action, the court remarked that "there has been large-scale encroachment and illegal constructions are going on in violation of the CRZ notifications." It also issued a notice to various agencies, including the State Pollution Control Board, seeking explanation on the steps taken to "implement CRZ [regulations], in the lake and [on] the islands as a whole". The notice also asked the agencies to spell out what has been done to avert pollution and restore the illegally reclaimed banks of the lake.

"The collusion of some local body officials with the violators and encroachers has resulted in the Maradu situation where a large number of purchasers are now being pushed out of their homes," feels B. Madhusoodana Kurup, former Vice-Chancellor of the Kerala University for Fisheries and Ocean Sciences, Kochi. The civic authorities of Maradu turned a blind eye to the letters and reminders from the KCZMA asking them to abide by the CRZ rules and send the building applications for clearance. If the directions had been implemented, the unprecedented crisis in Maradu could have been averted, says Kurup, who has served as a member of the Authority. The builders cannot claim immunity and feign ignorance about the regulations, he adds.

According to K.V. Thomas, former head of the Coastal Process Group of the National Centre for Earth Science Studies, Thiruvananthapuram, the Maradu municipality and the Kochi Corporation both ignored directions by KCZMA to identify the CRZ violations in their respective areas.

"In January 2014, nearly 5,000 suspected cases of CRZ violations were identified in the (structures) bordering the Vembanad lake using satellite images. The identification was carried out after a Supreme Court direction to identify the violations. Though the officials of the local bodies concerned were asked to physically verify the violations, they didn't take up the task," says Thomas, who had served as an expert member on several committees formed by the Authority. He also points out that an earlier direction from the Union Ministry for Environment, Forest and Climate Change to identify and report the CRZ violations was also ignored by the local bodies.

In 2014, nearly 5,000 suspected cases of CRZ violations were identified in structures bordering the Vembanad lake using satellite images

K.V. THOMAS,

Defending the cause of the four builders, Mathew Kurian, the lawyer who represented them in the Kerala High Court, holds the Authority solely responsible for the current fiasco. If at all there were violations or irregularities as alleged, the Authority, which has been in the courts since 2007, should have pointed it out. All the developments were taking place in front of its eyes and it didn't respond to it, he alleges. Regarding the 'No Objection Certificate' that the builders were expected to obtain from the KCZMA before proceeding with construction, Kurian says it was the responsibility of Maradu municipality and not the project proponents to send the files for clearance.

The Maradu developments have also triggered a sudden interest in another case in which the apex court let off the builder, DLF Universal Limited, which had constructed an apartment structure along the eastern banks of the Chilavannoor lake – an extension of Vembanad lake – with a fine of ₹1 crore.

While the Kerala High Court had initially ordered the demolition of parts of the building for violating the CRZ norms, the court's Division Bench later limited the punishment to a fine. The Supreme Court, which upheld the Division Bench's decision, slammed the KCZMA for its inaction in the case. The Authority "cannot wash its hands off by giving an explanation for inaction as the alleged absence of an enforcement force." Had it played its role, the violations would not have happened, the court noted.

However, an official of the Authority feels that the two cases aren't comparable as DLF had applied for CRZ and environmental clearances from the State government. But, in the Maradu case, no one had ever applied for a clearance, he says.

He also dismisses the argument made by some builders that once the more accommodative provisions of the CRZ 2019 notification become applicable, new buildings could be constructed at the same site after demolishing the existing buildings. Such construction can only be along the building line of a structure which was authorised and constructed before February 19, 1991, the cut-off date specified in the 2011 notification, he points out.

While earlier, Maradu was a 'panchayat' and hence fell under CRZ-III, at present, it is a 'municipality' (developed area) and comes under CRZ-II, applicable for urban areas. As per the 2011 norms, construction is allowed under CRZ-II areas towards the landward side of the authorised buildings or roads approved and completed before February 19, 1991.

A fast-shrinking lake

Man-made interventions have taken a toll on the fast-shrinking Vembanad lake, which supports an ecosystem that has sustained life in the three districts of Ernakulam, Alappuzha, and Kottayam. The lake is receding at an estimated rate of 0.288 sq. km each year, says P.K. Dinesh Kumar, scientist-in-charge of the National Institute of Oceanography, Kochi. The spread of the lake, around 130.68 sq. km, in 1967, reduced to 9.382 sq. km in 2004 and 3.292 sq. km in 2011, he points out.

There have been encroachments for agricultural expansion, aquaculture, large engineering structures, harbour development and tourism.

The Kerala government, after being pulled up by the apex court, has obtained a demolition impact assessment report from the Indian Institute of Technology-Madras, which has cautioned it about the possible environmental impact of bringing the buildings down, including contamination of the lake due to the debris.

The local body, says T.H. Nadeera, the chairperson of Maradu municipality, will wait for instructions from the State government in the case. "We are waiting for the directions," she says.

It would be a crisis of an unprecedented nature, with constitutional, ecological and humanitarian implications, that the State government may have to tackle if it fails to satisfy the Supreme Court's instructions as the latter takes up the case on Monday. For now, the critically vulnerable coastal area of Vembanad lake is in the cross-hairs of development and politics.

No GST relief for automobiles, biscuits

“This was a long and productive meeting with many issues that had been awaiting resolution, having been resolved,” said Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, who chaired the Council meet.

The GST rate on hotel rooms with tariffs above ₹7,500 per day, which is presently 28%, has been reduced to 18%, while the tax on rooms with a transaction value of ₹1001 to ₹7,500 per day will be 12%, down from 18% currently. Similarly, the rate on outdoor catering services in premises other than hotels with a daily tariff of ₹7,501 or more, has been reduced from 18% at present (with input tax credits) to 5% without these credits.

The tax on caffeinated beverages has been raised from 18% to 28% with an additional compensation cess of 12%, in a bid to deter their consumption. While this brings the tax on such beverages on par with aerated drinks, the Council has decided to disallow firms that make the latter from joining the Composition scheme.

‘Draft rules to regulate social media ready’

After recording the submission, the judges, in a lighter vein, said they hoped the Central government would take the same stand before the Supreme Court, which was seized of a plea by Facebook to transfer the case.

Passing interim orders on August 20, the Supreme Court had restrained the High Court from passing any “effective order” in the case.

Additional Government Pleader E. Manoharan told the Division Bench that the State government had filed an application to get the Supreme Court’s interim order vacated and that it had been listed for hearing on September 24. Deciding to await its outcome, the Bench adjourned its hearing to October 1.

During the hearing, senior counsel M.S. Krishnan, representing Twitter, urged the court to replace ‘Twitter Inclusive’, which runs the operations in the U.S. alone, with ‘Twitter International Company’, which manages the business of the social media giant across the world but for the U.S., in the list of respondents to the case. The judges accepted the request.

Initially, advocate Antony Clement Rubin had approached the court for an order for linking Aadhaar with social media accounts so that those who indulge in abuses and criminal activities could be identified easily and punished. However, the High Court made it clear that it was not in favour of such a plea. Instead, it expanded the scope of the case and suo motu impleaded Facebook, Google, YouTube, Twitter, WhatsApp as parties to the case so that they could be made to cooperate with the police in cracking cyber crimes by sharing information.

Even on Friday, the Bench led by Justice Sathyanarayanan, told senior counsel N.L. Rajah, representing WhatsApp, that the social media giants were bound to obey local laws and share information with the police. It said, the companies could not take umbrage under the right to privacy. “Don’t forget that in this country, even fundamental rights are subject to reasonable restrictions. They are not absolute,” Justice Sathyanarayanan told Mr. Rajah.

J&K panel to probe illegal detention of children

The petition referred to the “illegal detention of children in Kashmir as reported in the media and seeking judicial intervention in the matter”. It wanted the court to direct the government to file a status report and order the Juvenile Justice Committee to monitor incidents of detention.

“With regard to the situation in Jammu and Kashmir, there have been certain reports specific to children, which describe violations of very different kinds, ranging in seriousness from potential loss of life and liberty of the child to being emotionally and intellectually drawn into the conflict,” it said. The plea submitted that the reports were serious enough to merit judicial review of the situation and enforce and monitor certain immediate corrective action.

“The areas of concern as gleaned from reportage in mainstream newspapers are thus: the first pertains to illegal [if temporary] detention [and in some cases beatings] of young boys by security forces. The second concerns serious injuries and deaths of children, deliberate or accidental,” it said.

Two-year-old killed as ambulance hits truck

The officer said Mr. Pal claimed that he told the ambulance driver that he looked sleepy, but the latter insisted he wasn’t.

DCP Singh said a case has been registered and police teams are looking for the truck driver. “According to the ambulance driver and eyewitnesses, the truck was stopped by a transport enforcement team suddenly after crossing the DND toll. After the accident, both the truck driver and the enforcement team fled the spot,” he said.

The officer said the truck was perhaps stopped in the middle of the road by the transport officials. “The ambulance driver applied the brakes but could not arrest the vehicle’s speed,” the officer said. An employee of the private ambulance service said Sunil hailed from Kanpur and was staying in a rented house in Noida. He is survived by his wife and children, who live in Kanpur. The family has been informed, the police said.

The 29th Northern Zonal Council meeting here on Friday saw member States deliberating on issues such as drug addiction, water sharing, rehabilitation of dam oustees and hurdles post the implementation of the Goods and Services Tax.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah, who presided over the meeting, said that decisions taken by consensus would strengthen the federal structure of the country. He urged the CMs to ensure regular monitoring of cases related to narcotics, POCSO Act and murders.

Rahul links tax cuts to Modi’s U.S. visit

‘Amazing what PM is ready to do for a stock market bump ahead of tour... no event can hide the reality’

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Congress and the two major Left parties have slammed the corporate tax cuts announced by Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Friday.

Linking it to Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s upcoming visit to the United States, former Congress president Rahul Gandhi said the move was aimed at pushing up the stock market ahead of Mr. Modi’s tour to the U.S., where he is expected to meet many foreign investors.

Mr. Gandhi tweeted, “Amazing what PM is ready to do for a stock market bump during his #HowdyIndianEconomy jamboree. At +1.4 Lakh crore Rs the Houston event is the world’s most expensive event, ever! But, no event can hide the reality of the economic mess ‘HowdyModi’ has driven India into.”

At a press conference, Congress chief spokesperson Randeep Surjewala said the move also indicated the government’s ‘lack of confidence in its own Budget proposals’ that was passed by Parliament recently.

The Congress asked if the ₹1.45 lakh crore of revenue that the government was willing to forego from corporates would be recovered from the salaried and common people in the form of higher taxes and cess.

“Can the experimental Prime Minister and the greenhorn Finance Minister tell the nation as to where will the resources to compensate the revenue loss of ₹1,45,000 crore come from? Will they come by taxing the common man and the farmer in shape of taxes on petrol, diesel, electricity and other household products” asked Mr. Surjewala.

“Will they use their own tested model of bleeding the profit making PSUs like the Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) as they did in the case of the RBI by divesting it of ₹1.76 lakh crore to fill up the resource gap in this year’s budget?”, he said.

Mr. Surjewala asserted that almost the entire Budget proposals presented by the Finance Minister and approved by Parliament “have either been rejected or amended or rolled back over last one month”.

“Does it not mean a near total rejection of its own budget and budgetary proposals by this government reflecting the greenhorn attitude to tackling the economic crisis,” he asked.

‘Salaried class ignored’

Mr. Surjewala also questioned why the salaried class and lower income groups have not been given tax relief as that would have helped in increasing consumption and purchasing power.

The CPI(M) Polit Bureau, in a statement, said such measures cannot bring a turnaround in the current economic situation. “What is needed is a large dose of public investment to create employment and increase people’s purchasing power. The government is pursuing the exact opposite, which is nothing else but loot of Indian money for private corporate benefit and speculative profit,” the statement said.

CPI general secretary D. Raja said the move followed the government’s pattern of pro-corporate policies. “This government’s approach is to please corporate houses and serve their interests alone,” he said.

Left parties to hold joint protest

NEW DELHI

Five Left parties will hold a joint protest from October 10 to 16 across the nation against the “deepening economic crisis” and “growing unemployment.”

The Communist Party of India (Marxist), the Communist Party of India, the Communist Party of India (ML), the All India Forward Bloc and the Revolutionary Socialist Party announced this on Friday at the end of a joint convention.

“The Modi government in the past months has provided a relief of over ₹2.25 lakh crore to the rich but has shied away from helping the farmers who are forced to commit suicide due to farming sector distress,” CPI(M) general secretary Sitaram Yechury said. He said while people were suffering due to layoffs and slowdown in the auto sector, the Modi government was resorting to communal polarisation and divisive politics to divert the attention. Mr. Yechury said that only the Left parties could stand up to the political right and the fascist.

‘Bad situation’

“The situation is very bad and lives of people are on the verge of destruction. Unemployment is at its highest level in the last 50 years, industries and businesses are ruined and suffering from job losses, agriculture sector is the worst hit with farmers forced to commit suicide,” he added.

CPI general secretary D.

Raja said the government needed to clarify as to which direction it was leading the country to. “The economy is in a shambles. Instead of retrieving it from this deep crisis, the RSS-BJP combine has plunged the country into a political-social crisis,” Mr. Raja said, referring to withdrawal of Article 370, mob lynchings and the National Register of Citizens exercise in Assam.

In a joint resolution, the parties have placed seven demands. These include minimum wages of ₹18,000 per month, increased public investment to generate jobs, withdrawing 100 per cent FDI in defence and coal sectors and extending the National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme from 100 to 200 days.

Will not allow NRC in Bengal, says Mamata

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
KOLKATA

A day after meeting Union Home Minister Amit Shah, West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee said the National Register of Citizens (NRC) “would never take place in Bengal.”

“Can I produce evidence of the birth of my parents? Then how many ordinary people can produce such certificates?” she asked. Ms Banerjee came under attack from the CPI(M) and the Congress for allegedly “not discussing Bengal NRC” with Mr. Shah.

“We have not discussed it as we will never allow NRC in Bengal,” she said. However, she asked the residents of Bengal to “ensure that their names are added to the voter list.”

“There is absolutely no reason to get depressed or to develop some fear psychosis, I am your gatekeeper... as long as I am alive no one can touch anyone in Bengal,” she said.

BJP set to finalise sharing of seats with Shiv Sena

Party is clear it is the dominant partner in the ‘Mahayuthi’

NISTULA HEBBAR
NEW DELHI

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) hopes to finalise seat sharing arrangements with the Shiv Sena by September 22 or the upcoming weekend, ahead of the Assembly polls in Maharashtra, but is clear that the question of just who is the dominant partner has been settled in its favour.

Senior party sources told The Hindu that the alliance with the Shiv Sena, called the ‘Mahayuthi’, was very much on, but that the seats (number and specific areas) were still being hammered out between the two parties.

Before the two parties had parted ways just before the 2014 Assembly election (later coming together to be partners in the Devendra Fadnavis government), the seat-sharing arrangement was heavily loaded in favour of the Shiv Sena, which contested 169 seats, while the BJP contested 119 seats. By the time 2014 rolled around, the BJP, cresting on the Modi wave, wanted a renegotiation on a more realistic assessment of the ground situation.

Talks broke down in October 2014, and the two parted ways. The BJP and the Shiv Sena came back together after a period of being apart.

“What is interesting, of course, is that out of the total 288 Assembly seats [one member is nominated to the Assembly, taking the total number to 289], the BJP and the Shiv Sena directly faced off against each other in 54 seats. The BJP won 32 of these seats and the Shiv Sena 22. So the question of who the dominant force in the Mahayuthi is, has been settled in the last elections,” said a senior BJP leader.

“This is when the BJP had fought only on 260 seats and the Sena on 280,” added the source.

The BJP had fought on 25 seats out of a total of 48 seats in the Lok Sabha election, and the Sena contesting 23 seats. The BJP’s strike rate is better, too, with the party winning 23 of the seats; the Sena came in with 18 seats.

With all these numbers, the BJP is determined to settle the question of who can be seen as the big brother in the alliance in its favour, for some time to come.

No Minister will ever sign any file: Congress

Jairam Ramesh defends Chidambaram

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Congress on Friday claimed that “no Minister will ever sign a file” after what happened to P. Chidambaram in the INX Media corruption case and called the action against the former Finance Minister a “paramount example of political vendetta”.

Addressing a press conference at the All India Congress Committee headquarters, former Union Environment Minister Jairam Ramesh accused the government of planning a conspiracy to “defame and character assassinate” Mr. Chidambaram in the INX Media case.

In the case, the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) and the Enforcement Directorate (ED) has accused Mr. Chidambaram of taking a bribe from the promoters of the company, INX Media – Peter Mukherjee

Income Tax relief for domestic companies

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
PANAJI

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said here on Friday that a domestic company would now be allowed to pay income tax at the rate of 22% (from 30%), subject to the condition that it won’t avail any other (tax) incentives or exemptions.

“There will be no Minimum Alternate Tax levied on them and the effective tax rate for such firms will be 25.17%, including all surcharges and cess,” the Minister said.

To spur fresh investments and boost Make in India efforts, for new manufacturing companies incorporated after October 1, 2019, and commencing production by March 31, 2023, the income tax rate will be 15%, from 25% at present.

The effective tax rate for these companies will be 17.01%, compared to 29.1% now. These firms will also be exempt from Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT).

“In order to provide relief to firms who want to continue with the existing regime of exemptions, we are giving some MAT relief – the tax rate has been reduced from 18.5% to 15%,” the Minister said.

These tax cuts include a reduction in the surcharge on corporate income tax from 12% to 10%, pointed out Revenue Secretary Ajay Bhushan Pandey.

The President has promulgated the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance 2019 to bring into effect the slew of corporate tax rate cuts announced on Friday.

and his wife, Indrani Mukherjee – to allow foreign investment in contravention of rules.

‘Signed numerous files’

“If this philosophy is adopted, I can tell you that very soon no Minister will ever sign a file,” said Mr. Ramesh. “As a minister for eight years, I have signed hundreds of files; sometimes I have disagreed with the files that have come to me and sometimes I have agreed. Where I have disagreed, I have given reasons for the disagreement and where I have agreed, I have simply signed.”

“Now, if the penalty for signing a file – based on what has come to the Minister – is custody in Tihar jail, I can assure, no Minister will sign any file,” he added.

Mr. Ramesh, however, refused to take any questions from reporters, stating that the matter was in court.

Single judge Bench to hear bail pleas

It will also look into appeals for transfer of cases from one High Court to another

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Chief Justice of India (CJI) can nominate a judge of the Supreme Court to urgently hear and decide petitions dealing with matters of bail, transfer of cases and any other category of cases notified by the CJI from time to time.

The court has notified the Supreme Court (Amendment) Rules of 2019, which expands the ‘master of roster’ authority of the CJI to hand-pick one of his colleagues to form a Single Bench.

The Supreme Court Bar Association (SCBA), however, strongly objected to the amendment. In a resolution passed on Friday, it said the decision was taken without consulting the SCBA, which is a major stakeholder in the dispensation of justice in the court. The association urged the CJI to withdraw the amendment.

The decision is a departure from the Rules followed till date. Under Order VI, Rule 1 of the Supreme Court Rules of 2013, a Bench should have a minimum of two judges. However, with the current amendment, the court would see a Single Judge Bench like in the High Courts.

The notification, issued on September 17, said the Single Judge Bench, nominated by the CJI, would hear appeals arising out of grant, dismissal or rejection of bail or anticipatory bail for offences punishable with imprisonment up to seven years. This Bench would also hear appeals filed under Section 406 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC) for transfer of cases from one High Court to the other or one criminal court to another to serve the “ends of justice”. It would decide cases of transfer of an “urgent nature” applied under Section 25 of the CrPC.

Finally, the amended Rules give the CJI complete discretion to periodically notify the category of cases that could be heard and disposed of by the Single Judge Bench. The notification comes in the wake of the expansion of the Supreme Court. Its judicial strength has increased from 31 to 34. Two more courtrooms have been added to the court.

Further, the new notification allows advocates enrolled in any State Bar Council under the Advocates Act to argue a case in person directly without nod from the Registrar concerned.

Mufti's daughter writes to Centre

She sought details on number of minors detained

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Former Jammu and Kashmir Chief Minister Mehbooba Mufti's daughter Iltija has written to the Centre and Jammu & Kashmir government on behalf of her detained mother, seeking information on the number of detentions and arrests made in J&K since it was stripped of its special status more than a month ago.

Ms. Iltija has specifically asked for information on the number of minors (under 18), children in the 12-15 age group and those under 12 years, who have been detained, arrested or placed under house arrest. She has also sought data on the detenus and undertrials moved to jails and detention centres in other States.

Earlier, Ms. Iltija reactivated Ms. Mufti's Twitter handle which had fallen silent after August 5.

"Ms. Mehbooba Mufti, former Chief Minister of J&K, to whom this twitter handle belongs, has been detained since 5th August 2019 without access to the account. This handle is now operated by myself, Iltija, daughter of Ms. Mufti, with due authorization," she tweeted.

Farooq Abdullah turns to Koran

PEERZADA ASHIQ SRINAGAR

Former Jammu & Kashmir Chief Minister Farooq Abdullah was seen reading the Koran and praying five times in the lawns of his house-turned-sub-jail on Gupkar Road in Srinagar on Friday, as his detention entered a 47th day.

With his house sandwiched between his younger sister Suraiya Abdullah's residence 'Solomon Heights' and elder daughter Safiya Khan's home, Dr. Abdullah is able to exchange greetings with them almost on a daily basis now.

While family sources said Dr. Abdullah's daughter is allowed "to help him with his daily dose of medication," his sister Suraiya said her brother was in "good spirits".

"He prays five times a day," said Ms. Abdullah.

The doors connecting Dr. Abdullah's residence with those of his sister and daughter have been shut for now. "Entry from the front door only is allowed," the family members said.

They said Dr. Abdullah has access to television but receives no newspapers. However, former Chief Secretary Musa Raza's book 'Land of Regrets' is giving him company.

The sitting Member of Parliament from Srinagar was detained under the controversial Public Safety Act (PSA) on September 16 for his "provocative and secessionist speeches" made in the past.

Family members told The Hindu that his case was being discussed with senior lawyers in order to challenge the grounds of his detention. "We are weighing all the options," said a family member, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Protesters get ready for PM's Houston rally

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT WASHINGTON DC

With 24 hours to go for Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 'Howdy Modi' rally in Houston, where 50,000 Indian-Americans are registered to attend, protesters with different affiliations are preparing to battle the security arrangements for Mr. Modi and U.S. President Donald Trump and take on thousands of supporters of both the leaders.

New York-based activist Sunita Vishwanath, who founded "Hindus for Human Rights," that is part of a group called the Alliance for Justice and Accountability (AJA), says she will join the groups that will picket Houston's iconic NRG stadium - the rally venue.

"All of us are of Indian origin and the reason we are motivated to go to Houston to protest is because as people devoted to the secular idea of India, what we see happening in our homeland that we love is worrying," Ms. Vishwanath told The Hindu.

Several Kashmiri and Khalistani separatist groups, and a number of Pakistani-American groups have also planned to protest at the venue.

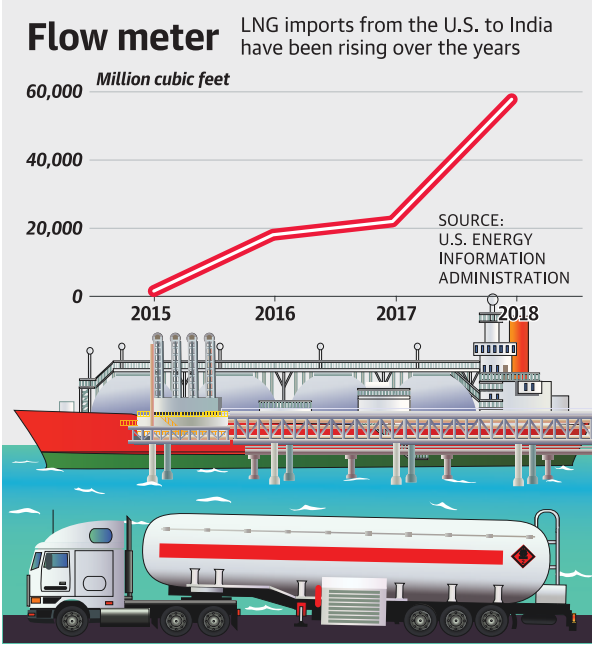

LNG deal to kick-start Modi's American tour

Officials say oil, gas purchases to 're-energise' ties

SUHASINI HAIDAR WASHINGTON DC

In an effort to "re-energise" ties, Prime Minister Narendra Modi will kick off his visit to the United States with a major LNG investment deal which is expected to be announced at the beginning of his visit. His first engagement to the United States with a major LNG investment deal which is expected to be announced at the beginning of his visit. His first engagement to the United States with a major LNG investment deal which is expected to be announced at the beginning of his visit.

Three-pronged message: Officials planning the visit said the Prime Minister's roundtable, to be held at America's energy hub Houston, is expected to send a three-pronged message the evening before his joint rally appearance with U.S. President Donald Trump: to showcase India as a major energy consumer and investor, a provider of jobs for Americans, and a destination for future U.S. exploration and regasification projects. Compared to 2018, India has imported more than three times as much oil and twice as much gas from the U.S. this year, and it is hoped that the inflows of Indian oil payments will soften Mr. Trump's concerns about the trade deficit between both the countries, 'greasing the wheels' for a potential breakthrough in the trade impasse between the two countries.

In addition, the facts that India has dropped its oil imports from Iran and Venezuela in deference to U.S. sanctions, and that China has cut American LNG imports in their ongoing trade war, will both be leveraged to push for concessions on energy supplies, particularly on shipping costs, the officials said, as the Prime Minister will stress that energy is now a "buyer's market."

"We import approximately $4 billion worth of oil and gas from the United States and this interaction that the Prime Minister will have with the energy majors of the United States is essentially not only to show that we are an important market but also to discuss investment and other possible opportunities in the economic area," Foreign Secretary Vijay Gokhale told reporters in Delhi ahead of the visit.

xonMobil, Schlumberger, Tellurian and Total. An executive amongst the invitees, who preferred not to be named, said that while there is considerable interest in the Indian market for gas and shale, India's distribution networks are wholly inadequate to deliver LNG and demand has not grown as much as they had hoped.

20-year contract: In 2011, GAIL, which is one of the major owners of Petronet, had entered into a 20-year contract to buy 5.8 million tonnes per year of U.S. LNG, split between Dominion Energy and Cheniere Energy. However, the long time taken for shipping from the U.S. to India, the recent downturn in key manufacturing sectors, as well as the industry's continuing dependency on coal have meant that Indian demand for LNG imports hasn't kept pace with supply. Over the past year many U.S. LNG cargoes bound for India have had to be resold via "swaps" in other markets.

MOSCOW
Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro will visit Russia "soon", the Kremlin said on Friday, in an apparent attempt by the embattled leader to shore up support. Trump says no to military strike on Iran

Treasury Department imposes toughest-ever sanctions on Iranian central bank for funding terrorism

ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON

President Donald Trump on Friday announced new sanctions on Iran that he said were the toughest-ever against another country but indicated he did not plan a military strike, calling restraint a sign of strength. The Treasury Department unveiled action against Iran's central bank after U.S. officials said that Tehran carried out weekend attacks on rival Saudi Arabia's oil infrastructure, which triggered a spike in global crude prices.

"We have just sanctioned the Iranian national bank," Mr. Trump told reporters in the Oval Office. "These are the highest sanctions ever imposed on a country." But Mr. Trump indicated he did not plan a military response, attacking both critics who thought he would trigger war and hawks seeking a military response. "The easiest thing I could do (is) knock out 15 different major things in Iran," Mr. Trump said.

Aftermath of attacks: Damaged refining towers at Aramco's oil plant in Abqaiq, Saudi Arabia, on Friday. • AFP

"I could do it right here in front of you. And that would be it. And then you would have a nice, big story to report," he said. "But I think the strong-person approach and the thing that does show strength would be showing a little bit of restraint," he said.

'Iran on borrowed time'
"Much easier to do it the other way. It's much easier. And Iran knows if they misbehave, they're on borrowed time," he said.

The United States already maintains sweeping sanctions on Iran, including on its central bank, with anyone who deals with it subject to prosecution, due to Tehran's alleged nuclear programme. But the Treasury Department said that it was imposing sanctions for the additional reason of "terrorism," saying the central bank had provided "billions of dollars" to two forces blacklisted by the U.S. Such a designation may be more difficult to lift, even if

Mr. Trump loses next year's election to a Democrat who wants to ease sanctions as part of a future deal. "Iran's brazen attack against Saudi Arabia is unacceptable," Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said in a statement. "Treasury's action targets a crucial funding mechanism that the Iranian regime uses to support its terrorist network, including the Qods Force, Hezbollah and other militants that spread terror and destabilise the region," he said.

The Qods Force conducts international operations for Iran's elite Revolutionary Guards, who are in charge of protecting the clerical regime. Hezbollah, the Shiite militant group and political party in Lebanon, is among Iran's closest regional partners. Behnam Ben Taleblu, a senior fellow at the Foundation for the Defense of Democracies, which supports tough action on Iran, said that the latest measures are a way "to push Tehran to shun funding terrorism." "It proves to Tehran that there will be no stopping U.S. sanctions unless Iran changes its behaviour," he said.

Development fund hit
The United States also imposed sanctions on Iran's sovereign wealth fund, a development fund whose board of trustees includes President Hassan Rouhani as well as Etemad Tejarate Pars, a company that the Treasury Department said had sent money internationally on behalf of Iran's Defence Ministry. Mr. Trump in June authorised a military strike after Iran shot down a U.S. drone, only to call it off at the last moment. He recently said that he hopes for talks with Mr. Rouhani, who responded that Mr. Trump must first ease sanctions. Mr. Trump last year pulled out of a nuclear accord with Iran negotiated under former President Barack Obama.

Pak. activist flees to U.S., seeks political asylum

She spoke against Army's sexual abuse

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
WASHINGTON

Gulalai Ismail's campaigns to empower Pakistani girls have won her international awards and recognition as one of her country's foremost activists. But when she spoke out against sexual violence and disappearances allegedly carried out by the Army in northwestern Pakistan, her fortunes quickly changed.

The 32-year-old said she feared for her life. After four months on the run, she succeeded in eluding a vast hunt and has turned up in the U.S., where she is seeking asylum. Ms. Ismail said she never sought to become an overseas dissident but sees a closing of the political space in Pakistan. "I never wanted to leave Pakistan," she told AFP in an interview in Washington. "I believe that I can better work towards democracy and civil supremacy and peace in Pakistan." But she concluded she would be more effective abroad, saying: "If I had ended up in prison and tortured for many years, my voice would have been silenced." Ms. Ismail believed she posed a special threat as a vocal woman. "When a man stands up, he is mostly against the State oppression. But when a woman stands up, she is fighting oppression on many levels — fighting cultural norms, fighting the patriarchy and the State oppression."

Death toll from Taliban bomb attack rises to 39

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
KABUL

The death toll from a massive Taliban bomb attack which flattened a hospital in southern Afghanistan earlier this week, has risen to at least 39, officials said on Friday. The jump in the death toll from the blast, which took place in the town of Qalat in Zabul province on Thursday, takes the total number of people killed in just three days of violence across the war-torn country this week to at least 91.

"The toll from the hospital attack in Qalat has jumped to 39 killed, 140 others wounded," Gul Islam Seyal, the spokesman for the provincial governor, said. Earlier, authorities had said the blast had killed 20 people. The surge in violence, with civilians paying the heaviest price, has come after U.S. President Donald Trump called off talks with the Taliban that could have seen Washington begin withdrawing troops.

No dicey talk with anyone: Trump

Uproar over his call to a foreign leader to 'influence 2020 poll'

ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON

U.S. President Donald Trump again denied on Friday that he did anything wrong during a mysterious phone call with an as-yet unidentified foreign leader after a whistleblower in the intelligence services sounded the alarm. The Washington Post reported that the call was to Ukraine and that Mr. Trump had made a "promise" of some kind. "There was nothing said wrong, it was pitch perfect!"

Mr. Trump tweeted, without detailing whom he had spoken to or what was said. He said his Democratic opponents and the media "think I may have had a 'dicey' conversation with a certain foreign leader" but this was only based on what he called "a 'highly partisan' whistleblowers statement." However, a political storm is rapidly brewing over the refusal by Mr. Trump's Director of National Intelligence to give Congress the whistleblower's report. The allegations could refer to a call known to have been made in July between Mr. Trump and Ukraine's President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, a former comedian who was elected in May. Mr. Trump allegedly sought to pressure the Ukrainians to pursue corruption charges against the son of his main Democratic rival in the 2020 presidential election Joe Biden. Congressional legislators were also concerned that the Trump administration had been holding back military aid to Ukraine at the time.

U.S. students seek climate action

Days before UN summit, young Americans march across the country

SRIRAM LAKSHMAN
NEW YORK

The largest climate change protests in the U.S. got under way on Friday with students and young people expected to turn out in more than 1,000 locations across all 50 U.S. States to demand action to prevent climate change. Young Americans joined others across the world in a day of protests. Greta Thunberg, the 16 year old from Sweden, who began weekly Friday protests outside Sweden's Parliament in August 2018 and has become the face of these protests, is participating in a rally in Lower Manhattan. Ms. Thunberg, who does not take aeroplanes, arrived in the U.S. via a zero emissions solar-powered yacht, having set sail from Plymouth on August 14. Earlier this week, she was in Washington where she testified before Congress, and met lawmakers, including Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi. "I don't want you to listen to me, I want you to listen to the scientists," Ms. Thunberg told a panel of the U.S. House of Representatives earlier this week, submitting a copy of the IPCC Special Report on Global Warming of 1.5° C [October 2018] as her testimony to Congress. "And I want you to unite behind the science. And then I want you to take real action," Ms. Thunberg had said.

New York's 1.1 million public school students have been allowed to skip classes to attend the protests if they have their parents' permission, but school teachers are not permitted to attend during school hours, the New York Times reported.

Friday's protests are scheduled for days before the UN Climate Change Summit on Monday which will see world leaders, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi and French President Emmanuel Macron deliver addresses. UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres had told leaders not to bring speeches but to bring plans to Monday's Summit. Significantly, President Donald Trump, who has pulled the U.S. out of the Paris Climate Accord and undone several climate change mitigating policies, will not speak on Monday. According to a CBS News poll, 56% of Americans want climate change action to be taken right now.

Twitter shuts down fake news accounts

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
WASHINGTON

Twitter said on Friday it shut down thousands of accounts worldwide for spreading misinformation, including some artificially amplifying pro-Saudi messaging as part of a regional propaganda war. The move affected pro-Saudi accounts coming from Egypt and the United Arab Emirates directed at Qatar and Yemen, Twitter said, as well as others from China seeking to sow discord among protesters in Hong Kong. Also, fake accounts were suspended in Spain and Ecuador. Notably, it closed the account of Saudi royal court adviser Saud al-Qahtani.

Bill de Blasio drops out of Democratic presidential race

He was unlikely to qualify for the fourth Democratic debate

JEFFERY C. MAYS
NEW YORK

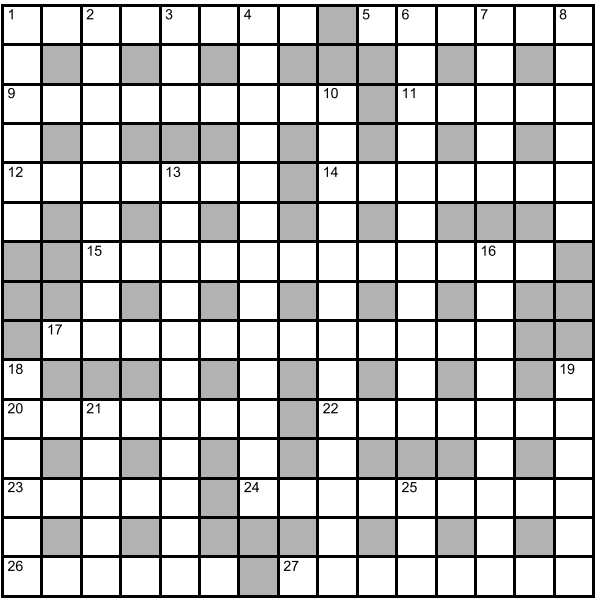

Bill de Blasio, the Mayor of New York City who entered the Democratic presidential race on the premise that his brand of urban progressive leadership could appeal on a national scale, said on Friday that he was ending his candidacy. Mr. De Blasio's announcement came as it became clear he was unlikely to qualify for the fourth Democratic debate next month, cementing the notion that he lacked the support and funds to sustain his bid. "I feel like I've contributed all I can to this primary campaign, and it's clearly not my time," he said in an appearance on MSNBC's "Morning Joe." "I'm going to end my presidential campaign, continue my work as mayor of New York City, and I'm going to keep speaking up for working people." Mr. De Blasio focused his campaign on trying to improve the lives of those working people. He tried to position himself as the most suitable Democrat to take on President Donald Trump, given his familiarity with Mr. Trump as a real estate magnate in New York. He branded the President "Con Don". None of it worked. Mr. De Blasio's campaign was seen as a quixotic, 100-to-1 shot from its inception and it never gained traction, not even in New York. NY TIMES

Plea from the heart

The Lord and His consort descend together to fulfil the purposes of their incarnations. In Rama avatar, out of compassion for humanity, the divine mother as Sita allows herself to be taken away forcibly to Lanka. This is to enable the killing of Ravana who is a great Siva devotee and a ruler who has consolidated extraordinary prowess through boons obtained by austere practices. She subjects herself to untold miseries when in captivity. In Krishna avatar, the divine mother as Rukmini pleads with Krishna to save her from the untoward marriage with Sisupala before he can approach her, pointed out Sri B. Damodhara Dikshitar in a discourse. Her brother Rukmi entertains enmity to Krishna and wants to give Rukmini in marriage to the evil minded Sisupala. But Rukmini has heard of the Lord's glories and her heart is filled with His thoughts. She represents the true devotee who is only driven by a desire to be with the Lord. She sends a Brahmin as a messenger to Krishna to inform Him of her desperate situation. The famed letter she reaches out to Krishna has tremendous significance as showcasing the plight of the jivatma for whom the Paramatma is the rightful owner. All jivatmas belong to the Lord and are His property. She also alludes to Narasimha avatar, and states that He has to make His appearance at the right moment to claim her, lest the Chedi king like a jackal takes away the possession meant for the lion. A jivatma earns the right to be with the Lord through acquiring merit by worship and spiritual practices, sacrifices, charities, religious rites, and adoration of holy men, elders and teachers. She suggests that Krishna should come incognito to her presence during the procession for worship at the temple of Goddess Parvati and by force of arms should marry her with all chivalry and glory.

NAMRATA JOSHI

Riz Ahmed reminds me of those quintessential commuters on the London Tube who appear too engrossed in a book to notice anyone else, but would have, in fact, stealthily taken note of and weighed in on everyone around them. On a day out with the press at Lavelle Rooftop in Toronto, on the sidelines of the 2019 Toronto International Film Festival (TIFF), the 36-year-old British actor, rapper and activist, dressed in black checked trousers, white tee, mustard jacket and multi-coloured shoes, seems too deeply lost within himself, but has actually been attentive enough to discern the pronounced Scottish accent of a journalist from Glasgow.

A conversation that begins with a query, about whether his latest role – of a heavy metal drummer facing hearing loss – found him at his most vulnerable, is initially negated, only for him to thoughtfully round off the interview later with how it perhaps was all about vulnerability in a tangential way. Darius Marder's Sound of Metal had its world premiere at TIFF and opened to a strong critical response, specially for Ahmed's effective, forceful performance – which takes him full circle, from denial to rage, anxiety, depres-

A full calendar

After the spiritual journey of Sound of Metal, Ahmed is doing Mughal Mowgli, which he co-wrote with Sundance prize-winner, Bassam Tariq. He also has a slate of projects that he has developed himself, including starring in an adaptation of Shakespeare's Hamlet for Netflix.

RIZ AHMED
unmasked

Sound of Metal was a hit at TIFF, and the actor-rapper-activist says the movie has changed the way he thinks about acting. Now it is about looking inwards and being himself sion to reconciliation and finding peace with his condition. Some describe it as his best yet. Riding on the positive word of mouth, Sound of Metal's US rights have been bagged by Amazon.

Existing in multiple spaces
Ahmed, with offbeats like The Road to Guantánamo (2006), Four Lions (2010), Trishna (2011) and The Reluctant Fundamentalist (2013) behind him, came into his own with Nightcrawler (2014). Then the HBO miniseries, The Night Of (2016), won him the Emmy for Outstanding Lead Actor in a Limited Series or Movie, making him the first Muslim and South Asian to win a lead acting Emmy. The only previous South Asian to win an acting Emmy is Archie Panjabi, for a supporting role in 2010 for The Good Wife.

From actioners like Jason Bourne (2016), Rogue One (2016) and Venom (2018) to a western like The Sisters Brother (2018), it has been as much about traversing diverse genres for Ahmed as about going beyond the confines of ethnicity. He sees more of himself in Sound of Metal than any of his other performances, not so much for the vulnerability but as a decisive step forward in what he's been trying to do as an actor over the years – stretching culture in a small way through his hyphenated identity.

Ahmed was born in Wembley in 1982, his parents having moved to England from Karachi in the '70s. "When you don't belong neatly in any one given box, when you are not British or Pakistani, when you fall between the cracks, which is how I grew up, you end up actually stretching yourself. You stretch culture just by existing in these multiple spaces, just by inhabiting the multiplicities," he says. He looks back at his younger self as a "good contortionist", one with a "flexible spine".

But now, at a different juncture in his life, and with the world around him also changing rapidly, "it is no longer about being a contortionist, but seeing if you can get your flexible spine to stand up straight and just be yourself, to really mine yourself, because within each of us are these multiple selves".

Politics and a point of view

Ahmed says the reason he probably became an actor was because he grew up making and moulding different masks to inhabit different worlds. "But the toughest thing, or potentially the most subversive thing for someone like me to do is to take off that mask. I think the way to stretch culture is to turn my back on mask making and mask wearing, and turn my attention more to unmasking." He admits, a trifle amused, that it may all sound highfalutin, but Sound of Metal shifted the whole way he'd been thinking about acting. It is now all about immersion within himself and spending more time looking inwards. "In a nutshell, it is recognising your own experience as valid and drawing on it," he says.

This is the font of his politics and world-view as well. Just as we go to press, he has pulled out of an event in the US, hosted by Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, where Prime Minister Narendra Modi is set to receive the Global Goalkeeper award for Swachh Bharat Abhiyaan. Though Ahmed hasn't issued a statement yet, speculation is that it could have to do with the Indian government's actions in Jammu and Kashmir.

Politics has been part of his art, forever and always. Be it his work, social media, red carpets or a speech in the House of Commons, the outspoken Ahmed has talked about multiculturalism and diversity (or the lack of it) in entertainment. His 2006 song 'Post 9/11 Blues' made satirical references to 9/11, terrorism, the post 9/11 scenario, et al. Ahmed has spoken out about Islamophobia and the lack of accurate representation of Muslims in the arts. As an activist, he has been involved

Jeff Goldblum lookalike?

The actor is often compared to Jeff Goldblum (famous for films like Jurassic Park, Igby Goes Down, Into the Night) on social media and in person. And Ahmed is happy. "I love Goldblum. If people were to compare me to him the rest of my life I will die happy. He is a very interesting guy, if you think about it. He doesn't fit into any box. He has played leading men, comedians, he is ethnically ambiguous. He is stylish, authentic, flamboyant. He seems like someone who unapologetically embraces all the sides of who he is."

in raising funds for the Syrian refugee children and Myanmar's displaced Rohingyas. In 2017, he was included in the annual Time 100 list of the most influential people in the world.

While philanthropy comes to him spontaneously, acting asks for more. In Sound of Metal, it involved seven-and-a-half months of practical as well as emotional preparation, leading on to four weeks of shooting. He learnt to play the drums with New York-based drummer Guy Licata, every day for two-and-a-half hours, and sign language from Jeremy Stone (artistic director of American Sign Language) for one-and-a-half hours. He hung out with the "noise, punk kind of metal community" and the deaf community. "It is to find out ways in which you may overlap with the character, go deeper into that. In the process you stretch what was your initial idea of the character and also stretch what was your initial idea of yourself," he says.

Finding himself in silence

How did a film about wordless communication transform his response to silence? Ahmed admits having been scared of silence. "I would rarely listen to CDs when I was growing up. I used to listen to the radio because I knew other people were listening. I didn't have a concept of aloneness; only thought of it as loneliness. I can relate to his [the character, Ruben Stone's] journey to face that silence. When you sit in silence, you sit in a void. You have to face yourself. Ruben went on that journey and he dragged me along with him. Now I think I have a pretty good relationship with silence."

He looks back at the film as an intensive, enriching and joyous experience. "You find yourself in unexpected places. You find yourself in a deaf kid, in a heavy metal drummer, in a Vietnam war veteran," he says, adding the motley crew from diverse background was a privilege to work with. "Something amazing happens when you bond with people you are told you have nothing in common with."

Despite the enriching experience it has been shooting it, the film itself is about something that is just the opposite – unanticipated loss, and how it makes you crumble but could also transform you and help you gain in unseen ways. What are you scared of losing, I ask Ahmed. He takes a long pause. "I'm scared of losing connection with myself, with people... It is a strange paradox, but it is something a lot of spiritual traditions speak about. Sufism, Buddhism always have this idea that when something breaks, light can enter," he says, and then comes back to the question of vulnerability that we began with. "When you are at your most vulnerable, you find strength and it is not just your own strength but also of those around you. It is one of life's great tragi-comic ironies ... When it all [goes belly up] is when you realise the abundance of life."

Sandesh and soul food

SUSANNA MYRTLE LAZARUS

In the battle of the biryanis, Arsalan's potato-laden version has its staunch supporters. And sandesh isn't the same unless it's from Balamullick. The argument over who invented rosogolla can be solved over a couple of the sugar-soaked chhena dumplings – we can conclude that it simply doesn't matter. With Durga Puja around the corner, Bengalis around the country don't have to travel all the way to Kolkata to sample these signature dishes. JustMyRoots (JMR), a food-tech platform, offers to bridge the gap by shipping speciality dishes from iconic restaurants to 21 cities across the country.

CEO and founder Samiran Sengupta says the idea is to tap into the nostalgia that India's largely migrant population have for the food of their hometown. Apart from the sweets, savouries and cooked dishes, their offerings include fresh fish like hilsa and produce like gondhoraj lelu. The platform has also partnered with restaurants in Delhi, Jaipur, Mumbai and Lucknow, with plans to expand to Chennai, Hyderabad and Kochi, among other cities, by the end of the year.

Taste of home

The concept is simple: visit the website or app and order like you would on a food-delivery platform like Swiggy or Zomato. The only difference is that you have to wait a few days before it reaches you. However, Sengupta reiterates that the food reaches their customer within 24 hours of being prepared. Another option that JMR offers is Direct From Home. He explains, "This is a big hit with parents whose children stay in different cities. They can ship a home-cooked meal to their kid for special occasions, or simply because they are missing home." The food is picked up and packed much like it is from their restaurant partners, and delivered within the same time period.

Their other USP is the packaging, he says. Although other sites like PlaceOfOrigin.in ship sweets, snacks, dry fruits, namkeen, pickle, jams, tea and coffee, the fact that JMR deals with freshly-cooked dishes, which puts the focus on the supply chain. "We spent nine months to a year just perfecting the packaging based on both customer and partner restaurant feedback. We finally settled on a product from Israel, which maintains the temperature of the food between five and eight degree celsius, which is ideal for transportation," he says. Since only 10 to 15% of it remains plastic, they are in the process of researching to make the packaging completely biodegradable. Future plans include expanding to China and other South East Asian countries by the end of this year, or early 2020, to cater to the Indian diaspora population. It's also close enough to fulfill their 24 hour promise.

As difficult as filmmaker John Crowley and screenplay writer Peter Straughan make it for you to be invested in the characters, including Theodore, the friendship between a young Theodore and Boris, a rebellious Russian teen with an abusive father, emerges as an exception. When all is lost, shared experiences of trauma, hopelessness and uncertainty, bind the two characters together in the parched Nevada desert, as they navigate adolescence. It's rare to see the film allow 'inconsequential' moments between the two to germinate at a leisurely pace, since most other scenes, even the emotionally-charged ones, are either causal or concomitant, and imposing cinematography only services the story. In the film, Theodore's mother, points at a withering leaf in a painting and tells him that the artist is trying to communicate something, perhaps about morality. Actors like Sarah Paulson and Nicole Kidman, are in the process, reduced to vignettes. Right at the onset, you discover Theodore has lost his mother in a bomb explosion at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. This incident illustrates the unwavering significance of destiny and art in Theodore's life. The protagonist's recurring tryst with the two is at the core of this story. Dig deeper, and the narrative wants to comment on the interdependence of destiny and art as well, but the film, with its agenda to cover an expansive ground, never quite allows any depth to emerge. While that other ex-military drifter, Jack Reacher is part Rimbaud and part Rambo, with a fascination for prime number factorization and head butting, John Rambo gives mathematics and the Romantics a wide berth while handing out a particular brand of justice using his special skill set. The fifth movie in the franchise which started with First Blood (1982), is violent and gory (I was watching from between my fingers) and easily forgettable – if not for the bone crunching violence, which one would like to wipe out of memory as soon as possible.

Trying for an elegiac tone complete with wooden house and beautiful horses is laughable as the movie quickly devolves into horrific violence with beating hearts and collar being pried out. The story involves Rambo living the quiet life on a ranch in Arizona with the beautiful Gabrielle and her grandmother. When Gabrielle runs off to Mexico to find her estranged father and finds herself in the hands of vicious drug dealers and human traffickers, it is left to Rambo to shoot 'em up and bring her home. to the season, winning all of their Premier League games. The midweek defeat in Europe against Napoli was a dampener Jurgen Klopp's men will look to recover from very quickly.

A stingy defence, an industrious midfield and a marauding offence have formed the basis of Liverpool's success, and Lampard's Chelsea, smarting after a loss to Valencia in Champions League action itself, will be tested all across the pitch.

Questioning faith
Lampard's faith will be tested, too. So far he has believed that Abraham, Mount and Tomori have what it takes at the highest level. "If they keep playing with the same attitude and training every day like they have trained as young players, then they are going to have fantastic careers, all of them," he said. "But they must sustain that."

Abraham, who scored freely on loan in the second-tier Championship last season, will come up against Virgil van Dijk, acknowledged as one of the world's best defenders. Lampard has been impressed by Abraham's drive to improve, describing it as "a bit special, you don't see that in all young players"; 90 minutes against van Dijk will be a steep learning curve, especially since the Liverpool centre-back made a rare error against Napoli and will be determined not to be embarrassed by the young striker.

Abraham has shown he can find the back of the net in a variety of ways: his attempts this season have ranged from the messy to the aerially dominant, with some skill and quick feet mixed in, as well. "Sunday is a test of character," Abraham said. "We can take our anger out against Liverpool after the European disappointment. It's a massive game. We'll look forward to putting [the Valencia loss] right."

Mount, whom Lampard observed at close quarters at Derby last season, went off in the game against Valencia after a tackle from Francis Coquelin, but a scan has shown that the ankle injury is not as bad as anticipated. The 20-year-old has posted impressive all-round numbers in midfield, averaging 3.2 shots, 2.2 key-passes, 2.2 dribbles and 2.2 tackles per game. Chelsea will want him back as soon as possible.

Early promise
While Abraham and Mount have earned the early-season headlines for their eye-catching performances, Tomori has looked promising at the back, quick to tackle and intercept danger. "Tomori has pace, he has recovery pace, he has defended really well," Lampard said.

The long-range goal against Wolves will make many a highlight reel, but his good mate Abraham wasn't so convinced when he saw Tomori take aim.

"I was thinking 'don't shoot, Fikayo,'" Abraham said with a laugh, "but everyone is delighted for him. In training, he's been trying it every day and smashing windows, but it paid off – it was a great strike. We [Abraham, Mount and Tomori] were the last people off the pitch because we were discussing how we've all scored in the same game for Chelsea. We've dreamt of that since we were little boys and we made it happen."

On Sunday, that dream will be subjected to a reality check. SPORTS BUREAU, REUTERS & AFP

Lampard's take

“We are a young side, with players like Mason [Mount] and Tammy [Abraham] for sure. I also don't want to forget Fikayo [Tomori]. But also Andreas Christensen, Kurt Zouma are still a little bit young in years and have to grow up very quickly and have the personality and be leaders on the pitch

“I think it's the age-old story, fans like to see players that really feel the club. The young boys certainly help. But I don't want to make it all about the young players because there are older players who have come from all over the world, Jorginho and Kovacic... they take on different responsibilities and mentor them slightly. So we'll get that balance

The Milan derby is back in fashion

Saturday's main-event at the San Siro has generated a lot of buzz, thanks to the new arrivals at both clubs

The Derby della Madonnina, or the Milan derby, is one of world football's most iconic games because of its history, but it has changed character over the years, corresponding to the oscillating fortunes of the two clubs involved.

For long, it was a game that stopped the world, featuring as it did football's biggest stars. Then it went through a phase when not too many fans outside Italy cared about it, with both clubs eclipsed by Europe's new elite. The fixture has enjoyed something of a revival in recent times, and the season's first Milan derby, this Saturday at San Siro, has generated a lot of buzz.

It helps that both clubs are under new management and have spent money during the transfer window in the attempt to end trophy droughts which extend back to 2011 when AC Milan won the Serie A and Inter won the Coppa Italia.

Inter chose Antonio Conte, who has won three Serie A titles with Juventus, one English Premier league title with Chelsea, and is famous for his intense, detailed work on the training pitch and the odd raging fit off it.

Milan, on the other hand, went for the mild-mannered, soft-spoken Marco Giampaolo, who has never managed better than ninth place with Sampdoria. But he is known as a details man himself, and has been tasked with getting Milan to play attractive football.

Inter is on top of the table, having signed Romelu Lukaku (club-record), Alexis Sanchez, and Diego Godin, who are the biggest names among the new arrivals.

AC Milan was active in the transfer market, as well, Giampaolo attempting to shape his squad with the deadline-day signing of Croatia star Ante Rebic after bringing Theo Hernandez and Ismael Bennacer, among others, to the club.

Conte's Inter has made a statement start to its Serie A campaign, winning three in three. AC Milan, which hosts the derby, will be keen to build on its last two wins. Despite a lot of talk about the club's return to a more expansive, passing style of football, Milan hasn't scored more than one goal in any of its games so far. If it wants to win its first league game against Inter since January 2016, that may not be enough. SPORTS BUREAU & REUTERS

WORD PLAY

Chinaman

● What is it? It's a term in cricket used to denote a delivery bowled by a left-arm wrist-spinner that turns in to a right-handed batsman. For a visual guide, think of it as the mirror image of the leg-break bowled by a right-arm leg-spinner. The use of the term is problematic, however.

● Why is it problematic? Australian writer Andrew Wu argued in 2017 that it was racially offensive, explaining how, historically, it had been used to express contempt. Wisden dropped it in 2018, saying it was "no longer appropriate", and replaced it with 'slow left-arm wrist-spin'.

● What is the origin story? According to legend, England's Walter Robins was stumped off a wrist-spun delivery by left-armed Ellis Achong, a West Indian of Chinese ancestry, in the 1933 Old Trafford Test. "Fancy being done by a Chinaman," a baffled Robins allegedly said.

● Is that true? Robins was indeed stumped off Achong, but there is no proof that he said those words. What's more, the style of bowling and the term's usage predate 1933 – instances of both date back to 1920s Britain. So, the story doesn't quite add up.

The lifeblood of the modern Formula One engine

In the hybrid era, fluids — fuel, oil, lubricants, and coolants — have played a vital role in boosting performance. A look at how Mercedes and PETRONAS have got it right

Formula One is a sport of thin margins, with crazy money and resources invested in chasing fractions of a second in performance – margins that can define races.

A lot of the in-season development focuses on aerodynamic modifications, improvements in suspensions and brake ducts, and periodic engine upgrades. But an area of development that has grown in importance since 2014, with the switch to small, turbo-powered hybrid units, is the fluid that forms the lifeblood of the power unit: the combination of fuel, oil, lubricants, and coolants.

During the Italian Grand Prix, Malaysian oil and gas company PETRONAS offered The Hindu access to its engineers and trackside laboratory to get a sense of how the fuel supplier and the engine manufacturer work together to improve performance. Mercedes, in partnership with PETRONAS, has won five drivers' and constructors' titles and is on course this season for a sixth double.

Everything is connected

As outlandish as it sounds, the nature of the fluid determines something as fundamental as the car's size. "Combustion produces a lot of heat and this has to be managed," says Andrea Dolfi, head of R&D, fluid technology solutions, PETRONAS.

"If you go beyond a certain limit, you will melt alloy and burn plastic. You typically dissipate heat through a radiator, but if there is a fluid which can efficiently dissipate heat, then the car can have a smaller radiator. This means a more compact car, reducing drag and boosting speed. So, you can see how a tiny thing in fluid can impact the whole design and engineering of other components of the car."

What's more, the excess heat is extracted and fed back into the car; the better the fluid is at recovering this heat energy, the more efficient the car. So, it's no surprise that engine manufacturers have a close relationship with their fuel supplier, right from the design stage, to maximise power and improve lap-times.

Synergy

Andy Cowell, MD of Mercedes AMG High Performance Powertrains (HPP), confirms that the power unit and its fuel "were designed hand-in-hand – and there was continuous exchange between us, in order to optimise not just the composition of the fuel and its combustion characteristics, but also the physical characteristics of the engine to ensure they worked together in the best way possible."

Cowell also speaks of how teams in an earlier era of racing were rewarded for using more fuel to generate power; there were no fuel limits. "The hybrid regulations work with a maximum fuel flow rate – so the challenge is to generate as much performance as possible from the available fuel, which is the same for every competitor," he says. "This means focusing on efficiency in every aspect of the power unit, both to generate power and also minimise the small losses that can cost lap-time.

"The regulations mean that we find performance through thermal efficiency – essentially, converting as much of the chemical energy in the fuel as we can into useful work. We then also focused on minimising any energy losses in the system, through our design choices and the lubricant specification."

The fuel supplier also provides trackside support. During a race weekend, the only way to discover issues with the engine is to test the oil before and after each session.

"The engine is like the heart and oil is the blood," says Dolfi. "Like blood tests, we use the oil to look into the engine because you can't open the engine during the weekend. If there are some parts misassembled or there is excess wear or something wrong is getting into the engine, the oil can tell us and we can repair it."

Oil doctors

Just how does this work? The presence of metallic components in the oil corresponds to the wear of the part of the engine that is made of that metal. "For example, let's suppose pistons are made of titanium," says Ahmad Nasri Mohd. Shafie, PETRONAS trackside fluid engineer. "Whenever there is excessive wear of it, we will find high levels of titanium in the oil."

While wear is expected, given there are so many moving parts, excessive wear isn't: so, if there is a lot of something in the oil that shouldn't be there, alarm bells ring.

We've learnt how vital fluid is, but just what difference can a fuel supplier make in terms of increasing power and reducing lap-time?

"We wouldn't like to put a number to this – as it simply sets a target for our rivals to aim for!" says Cowell. "Generally, it is true to say in Formula One that there is no single 'magic bullet' – we find performance in small steps... and these add together. The fuel and lubricants are an integral part of this process."

Mercedes team boss Toto Wolff is more willing to put a number to it, without giving too much away. "[Real horsepower] does not come only from the fuel. It comes from the oil and the heat-rejection efficiency from the fluids [lubricants], which translates into horsepower. So we are talking about double-digit horsepower from oil and fuel." In a sport of small margins, that's plenty.

Nifty net-work

Lacrosse is, simply put, a cross between basketball and hockey. Played over 60 minutes by two teams with sticks, which resemble tiny butterfly nets, and a ball, the sport doesn't indulge ties. At the end of regulation time in a match, if the scores are level, the first team to score in the sudden-death overtime period wins.

A version of lacrosse originated in Canada as early as the 17th century, making it one of the oldest team sports in North America. It is also most popular in North America. Lacrosse is one of the few sports that have different rules for men and women: the men's version allows body contact while the women are only allowed stick-to-stick contact. The World Indoor Championships, the sport's biggest indoor tournament, is held every four years. The fifth edition, underway in British Columbia, Canada, has a record 20 countries participating. Canada is the most successful team in the championships, having won gold in all four editions held.

Hamilton eyes a hat-trick in hazy Singapore

Twisty Marina Bay expected to favour Mercedes and Red Bull; threat of smog hangs over the night race

Lewis Hamilton may find his march towards a sixth Formula One title in Singapore this weekend clouded by haze from wildfires raging in neighbouring Indonesia.

The National Environment Agency is forecasting pollution at the "low end of the unhealthy range" for Sunday's showpiece night race after dense smog last weekend.

Formula One bosses are reported to have a contingency plan in place should the "highly changeable" air quality deteriorate, though the race weekend is still scheduled to go ahead as planned.

Hamilton, who leads teammate Valtteri Bottas by 63 points, has taken four of Mercedes' five victories at the demanding Marina Bay street circuit and is looking for a third consecutive triumph in a race that even without the threat of smog is traditionally draining because of heat and high humidity.

After Ferrari's consecutive victories on power-friendly layouts in Belgium and Italy in the two races after the summer break, Singapore is expected to favour Mercedes and Red Bull.

The Leclerc threat

But Hamilton remains wary of Charles Leclerc, who has outshone his error-prone Ferrari teammate Sebastian Vettel. "I hope that it is competitive between us – I want this battle to continue," said Hamilton of the 21-year-old.

Mercedes team principal Toto Wolff also expects Ferrari to be in the shake-up despite the Italian team struggling on circuits lacking long straights this season.

"On paper, we should be strong in Singapore – as should Red Bull," Wolff said. "But I have no doubt that Ferrari will have learned and will have a good package."

Red Bull has enjoyed 12 podium finishes in Singapore since 2008, including three victories, and will hope Max Verstappen can improve on his second-place finish from a year ago to stay ahead of Leclerc in their battle for third in the drivers' standings. Verstappen was strong in Friday's free practice, topping the first session and finishing behind Hamilton in the second. AFP

Asian champion Amit Panghal (52kg) on Friday became the first Indian to make the final of the World men's boxing championship while Manish Kaushik (63kg) signed off with a bronze. Second seed Panghal prevailed 3-2 against Kazakhstan's Saken Bibossinov in the semifinals, but Commonwealth Games silver-medallist Kaushik lost 5-0 to top-seeded Cuban Andy Gomez Cruz, a gold-medallist from the previous edition besides being the Pan-American Games champion.

Final opponent

On Saturday, Panghal will take on Uzbekistan's Shakhobidin Zoirov, the reigning Olympic champion. Panghal's rise has been nothing short of spectacular in Indian boxing ever since he claimed a 49kg category bronze in the 2017 Asian Championships. India had never won more than one bronze in a single edition of the World Championships but Panghal and Manish Kaushik (63kg) changed that by making the semifinals.

Past Indian medal-winners at the Worlds are Vijender Singh (2009), Vikas Krishan (2011), Shiva Thapa (2015) and Gaurav Bidhuri (2017). "I am going to push hard for a gold," Panghal said later. "I gave it my all, but I guess there are a few things lacking in my game, which I will try to improve on. I will work harder and deliver better results in coming tournaments," Kaushik said.

SC allows TNCA to conduct elections

Says the result of the polls would be 'subject to the order passed by the court'

BCCI AFFAIRS

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court, on Friday, allowed the Tamil Nadu Cricket Association (TNCA) to conduct elections even as the Committee of Administrators (CoA) for the BCCI complained that the association is unwilling to comply with or ratify the terms of the new BCCI Constitution as ordered by the apex court. "They can do whatever they want to... point is they are indeed holding elections. We can undo the results (of the polls) or even send it to the civil court," Justice S.A. Bobde, heading the Bench comprising L. Nageswara Rao, orally observed. Later, the court permitted the TNCA, represented by

- Amicus curiae P.S. Narasimha submitted that only three member associations have not complied with the new Constitution, and TNCA is one of them senior advocate Kapil Sibal, to conduct the elections. It added that the result of the polls would be "subject to the order passed by the court" in the pending applications.

CoA's contention

The CoA, represented by senior advocate Parag Tripathi, complained to the Bench that TNCA has "consistently refused to abide by the Supreme Court order (of August 9, 2018 which finalised the new BCCI Constitution). They have consistently said 'we will go our way'". Amicus curiae and senior advocate P.S. Narasimha submitted that only three member associations have not complied with the new Constitution, and TNCA is one of them. "They must comply with the Constitution," Mr. Narasimha stressed. Justice Bobde, in the order, recorded that all member associations should comply and register their respective constitutions in accordance with the direction of the Supreme Court judgement of August 9, 2018. The Bench ordered all the member associations to comply with the BCCI Constitution. The court further noted that the disqualifications laid down in Clause 14 of the new BCCI Constitution would be confined to office-bearers alone. The court allowed the 21-day notice period for holding elections to be "relaxed" on the discretion of the amicus curiae. In this regard, the Registrar of Co-operative Societies would comply with the instructions of the amicus curiae. On August 8 last year, a three-judge Bench of the Supreme Court had finalised the new Constitution for Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) while rejecting the 'one-State one-vote' recommendation of Justice R.M. Lodha Committee and altering the cooling-off period for cricket bosses.

time before play would be called off. It has been a successful series for the home team, having won both the one-day and 'Test' outings (4-1 and 1-0). India-A head coach and former Saurashtra cricketer Sitanshu Kotak stated, "Given the hugely skilled players we have in our squad, we did expect to do well in this series. "Credit to (BCCI general manager) Saba Karim, (National Cricket Academy head) Rahul Dravid and the BCCI for the way these 'A'

tours have been scheduled. Every senior India tour is preceded by an India-A tour, which is great for the players to get valuable match practice. "For example, in this match, we lost the toss and were put in to bat. The conditions heavily favoured the pacers, but our top-four did very well to play out the danger. If this same situation happens in an international match, our guys will be well prepared for it." The scores: India-A – 1st innings: 417. South Africa-A – 1st innings:

GENEVA

Dominic Thiem and Stefanos Tsitsipas won three-setters for Team Europe to give it a 2-1 lead over Team World on the first day of the Laver Cup here on Friday. Europe struck first as Austrian Thiem beat Canada's Denis Shapovalov 6-4, 5-7, 13-11, saving three match-points in the super tie-break. Thiem, ranked fifth in the world, needed only one break of serve to take the opening set, but the 20-year-old Shapovalov fought back to break twice in the second set to tie the game at one set apiece. The young Canadian led 9-7 in the tie-break before squandering his matchpoints as Thiem clawed his way back to win the contest on his second match-point. "It's a really special thing with the tie-break in the third," Thiem said. "It creates lots of close moments and match-points on either side. It's also a little bit of luck at the end." In the second singles, American Sock prevailed in straight sets over Italian Fabio Fognini, winning 6-1, 7-6 (3). Stefanos Tsitsipas put Europe ahead again with a 6-2, 1-6, 10-7 verdict over Taylor Fritz. The results: Europe leads World 2-1 [Dominic Thiem bt Denis Shapovalov 6-4, 5-7, 13-11; Fabio Fognini lost to Jack Sock 6-1, 7-6(3); Stefanos Tsitsipas bt Taylor Fritz 6-2, 1-6, 10-7].

Gill's title hunt may well begin here

It is expected to be a face-off between him and Team Champions' Dean Mascarenhas

MOTORSPORTS

JODHPUR

After mastering most of the stages in the WRC in Marmaris (Turkey) last week, India's Gaurav Gill (co-driver Musa Sherif) is back to deliver his best in the Maxperience Rally, the third round of the Champions Yacht Club FMSCI Indian National Rally Championship for cars, that begins here on Saturday.

Quite a few expect a face-off between Gill (Team Mahindra Adventure) and Team Champions' Dean Mascarenhas (Shruptha Padival) the next two days. That's not the truth as Gill is a champion driver and has proved that to a great measure for many years now.

Miles away
"There's not going to be any sort of face-off. Gill is a World

Setting the pace: Gill in action during the free practice session at Jodhpur on Friday.

Rally driver and am miles away to reach there. But, I am sure that I can get there on time, hopefully, with his guidance and experience," Dean told The Hindu here on Friday.
"He has been helping me and am also looking at learning the way he goes about in his academy. From there, I should be able to do something better," he added.

Dean currently leads the INRC2 class and is second overall. "But there are four more rallies to go from here and there's lot more that can add or change," he said.
The rally, powered by MRF, is expected to bring the best out of the participants as it boasts of some super-fast sweeping roads. And the hungry-looking Gill may well begin his title hunt in this Sun city.

"I am fresh off my WRC round but this is a completely different car that requires different inputs of driving and using the package that we have – the gearbox, the differentials and the engine.

I need to detune myself to a different style of driving. These engines are not as fast as those cars and I need to quickly get used to these speeds," said Gill.

New package

"We have not had the best rounds so far, but this round we have a completely new package, with the engine, the tune and the tyres, so I am hoping to finish on top," he added.

Race Concepts Younus Ilyas (Harish Gowda) of Kochi is the other driver who will be eager to give the two a run for their money.

The Rally of Jodhpur, run on gravel, will cover about 300kms which includes 125kms of Special Stages.

East Bengal pips Rainbow

CFL

KOLKATA

East Bengal downed Rainbow AC by a first-half penalty in a Calcutta Football League match at its home ground on Friday.

Spanish forward Marcos Espada Martin found the net from a 35th-minute penalty to secure the full points for East Bengal.

The win, which came after the 2-2 draw against Bhojanipur Club, helped East Bengal progress to the second spot with 17 points from nine matches.

East Bengal was tied on points with the current leader Peerless SC, which remained on top for having a better goal difference. Peerless has also played a match less to remain the favourite in the race for the title.

With two more matches to go, East Bengal has to win both while wishing that Peerless drops enough points in its next three outings to give it a chance of regaining the title.

The result: East Bengal 1 (Marcos Espada Martin 35-pen) bt Rainbow AC 0.

IOA warns EFI of sanctions

EQUESTRIAN

NEW DELHI

The Indian Olympic Association seems to have finally taken note of the Equestrian Federation of India's blatant disregard for government guidelines in its forthcoming elections to the Executive Committee scheduled for Sept. 29.

In a communique to the EFI president Lt. Gen. R. Gopal, IOA secretary general Rajeev Mehta has categorically expressed disagreement to the federation going ahead with elections, notified earlier this month, despite not complying with the National Sports Development Code 2011.

Unanimous decision

"... it was unanimously decided (during the IOA AGM in December) that EFI would henceforth continue to be a member of the IOA without voting rights until there are corrective actions in governance. If EFI proceeds with elections and appointments based on the current norms, it would be liable for further sanctions," the mail warns.

As per the NSDC 2011, only State/UT associations can be part of the electoral college.

The EFI, however, has individual members, life members and clubs on its electoral list with the election notice having no mention of any attempt at code compliance.

Objections

Quite a few State associations have raised objections to the EFI's functioning and voting process and sought intervention from the sports ministry and the IOA.

Interestingly, the sports ministry had set Aug. 3 as the deadline for code compliance as a condition for recognising the EFI but despite the federation not bothering to adhere to the same, it continues to enjoy the status of a recognised 'priority' sport.

Dhamne-Majumder win

Pari Singh and Shruti Ahlawat.

TENNIS

NEW DELHI

The all-round ability and calm demeanour proved decisive as third seeds Manas Dhamne and Arunava Majumder won the boys' doubles title, beating Jasmeet Duhan and Rushil Khosla in the Asian under-14 grade-A junior tennis tournament at the DLTA Complex on Friday.

The left-handed Khosla and Duhan made a fight of it in taking the match into the super tie-break. However, the two were erratic in the tie-break, as Dhamne and Majumder took a 5-1 lead for the first change. Thereafter, there was some fight to make it 5-7 before the second change of sides. A double fault at this stage, possibly owing to nerves by Duhan, eroded the confidence of the team. Dhamne and Majumder were solid on the next two points to close out the match.

In the girls doubles final, Pari Singh and Shruti Ahlawat overwhelmed Maisha Rao and Chandni Srinivasan 6-0, 6-2.

The results: Finals: Doubles: Boys: Manas Dhamne & Arunava Majumder bt Jasmeet Duhan & Rushil Khosla 6-3, 5-7, [10-5].

Girls: Shruti Ahlawat & Pari Singh bt Maisha Rao & Chandni Srinivasan 6-0, 6-2.
